New Year, New Cars
Ladies With Wide Hips
France Gets the Gold
We're All Richer

NINETEEN HUNDRED AND THIRTY will be a big year for automobiles and the wise man will meet the year looking his best driving a new car.

H. J. Klinger of General Motors wires description of a new type Chevrolet with more efficient shock absorbers, new Fisher bodies, bigger tires, brakes fully enclosed, greater horsepower and smaller prices.

The automobile industry leads all American industries in constant improvement in quality, performance and reduction in cost.

Last year Chevrolet sold more than 1,300,000 six-cylinder cars.

Don't worry about prosperity, but get what you need. One thing is a new car to double the value of time, and double the self-approval that stimulates effort.

So much the better for San Francisco and its future generation.

A woman built like a wooden lath is all right for Ziegfeld's Follies, well built to crawl through a picket fence.

But the mothers of great men, from Charlemagne to Lincoln, from Alexander's mother, Olympias, who danced with snakes wrapped around her, no other clothing; to the mother of Renan with good peasant blood you will find real hips, some thing substantial, not an osteological, anatomical specimen of pelvic depression.

Some worry because gold is going abroad. Seven million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars will be shipped to France on the Berengaria today, making a total shipment of $105 000,000 gold for the month.

You admire French financiers when you hear that they got $80,000,000 of that gold.

How do the French do it? They work and they save.

As your debts diminish, you automatically become richer. The people of the United States become richer by about a thousand million dollars during 1929.

Mr. Mellon's statement shows that in 12 months the national debt has been reduced by one billion and nine million dollars.

If Uncle Sam collected his foreign debts as efficiently as he collects from taxpayers at home we would be clear of debt soon.

In Germany, Mennonite refugees from Russia, encamped with their children, are stricken with a strange disease. Forty children died in a few hours. Many were sacrificed because their mothers hid them from doctors, following a Mennonite custom of substituting prayer for medical attention.

That method no longer works. "Know the truth, and the truth shall make you free," includes scientific medical truth.

The son of Italy's King will soon be married and 6000 will be freed from prisons by way of celebration.

What seems strange in America is a custom old in Europe.

After Admiral Nelson brought his ship into the Bay of Naples promising to protect the King and Queen and their court against the power of the French revolution, many convicts were set free to celebrate.

And kings on mounting the throne have often emptied prisons as a sign of joy.

The National Surety Co. has issued a policy of $30,000 guaranteeing against the suicide of a man insured, within the next two years. The man borrowed money. The bank lending it wanted the added security.

That's new in insurance.

BITTER ATTACK ON MAYOR

SAW BAR AND FLEE FROM PRISON

Lifer and Two Others Hunted After an Escape at Wethersfield

Wethersfield, Ct., Jan. 4—Three convicts, one a slayer serving life, escaped from State Prison shortly before daybreak today.

Roland Lalone of Worcester, the lifer; Leo Landry of Revere, Mass., and Watson Moulthorpe of Danbury made a desperate and successful break for liberty from the prison bakery.

The trio sawed a single bar in the bakery skylight, hoisted themselves through, ran across the bakery roof and leaped to the prison wall. No one saw them go, although it is believed their escape was discovered within 15 minutes.

State police and prison guards began a search of the vicinity and Massachusetts authorities were notified.

Lalone, with his companion in crime, Albert J. Raymond, was known as the "ice box bandit." Both Worcester youths were sentenced to life imprisonment after being found guilty of murder in the second degree in the shooting of State Trooper Irving H. Nelson at Pomfret, April 6, 1928.

Lee Landry, 27, with his brother, Arthur, escaped from the Massachusetts prison camp at Norfolk last January. Both were captured in Danbury a few days later and sentenced to short terms at Wethersfield for burglary of a gasoline station near here. They had walked out of the Massachusetts camp after their plea for release on parole was denied.

Moulthorpe, 24, is known as a dangerous character. He was sentenced last May to from 15 to 25 years for robbery with violence at Danbury.

Furs Sent Princess by Hoover

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP)—A distinctly American gift has been forwarded by President and Mrs. Hoover to their friend, Princess Marie Jose of Belgium, who is soon to marry Prince Humberto of Italy.

Ten American Alaskan sealskins were forwarded to the Belgian princess, with whom the President is personally acquainted, having been associated with her and members of her family during his relief work in Belgium.

The skins, which are of a new shade of brown, and very rare, were sent without having been made up, with a message saying that the princess could have whatever she wanted made out of them.

Accept Gasparri's Resignation Today

London, Jan. 4 (INS)—Cardinal Gasparri's resignation as papal secretary of state was accepted by Pope Pius XI today, according to a Central News dispatch from Rome.

The noted prelate resigned because of advancing years and a desire for less rigorous work, but it was thought his resignation would not become effective until after the anniversary of the signing of the lateran treaties next month.

PAPAL MEDAL FOR DR. ELLEN JOLLY OF R. I.

Highest Honor From Vatican for Lay Woman to Be Presented Today

Pawtucket, R. I., Jan. 4 (AP)—The papal medal, highest honor that may be conferred by the Roman Catholic Church upon a laywoman, has been awarded Dr. Ellen Ryan Jolly by Pope Pius XI in recognition of her work for the church, it became known today.

The medal will be presented Mrs. Jolly tomorrow by the Rt. Rev. William A. Hickey, bishop of the Providence diocese, at ceremonies in the Academy of St. Francis Xavier, Providence.

Mrs. Jolly was formerly national president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Ancient Order of Hibernians.

She is the author of "Nuns of the Battlefield," a story related to the work of nuns during the Civil War, and she was the leader of the movement that resulted in erection of a monument to Civil War nuns at Washington.

WARD, DOWLING CAUSE UPROAR AT CLOSING SESSION OF COUNCIL

Two vitriolic attacks upon Mayor Nichols featured the last session of the City Council and the close of the Nichols administration at City Hall today.

Councillor Michael J. Ward, lieutenant of Mayor-elect Curley, and Councillor Frederick D. Dowling bitterly assailed Mayor Nichols and the four-year administration of his office.

"All Baba and the arch thieves came in to run the city four years ago," Ward declared, reading a prepared statement that was allowed under suspension of the rules.

The recent farewell dinner to the mayor at the Copley Plaza, featured by the presentation of an expensive automobile, was "a Christmas basket fund, for graft politicians, and contractors were shaken down for $100 to $500 to buy a tin lizzie for the passing mayor," Dowling accused.

He further alleged that city officials and employes were "clubbed into contributing."

The attacks threw the final meeting of the council into an uproar with Councillor Seth Arnold, himself the butt of bitter disparaging remarks, vainly attempting to halt them.

Between hearings, so to speak, the council placed on file section 8 of the legislative act on the Elevated, planned to transfer $52,000,000 worth of rapid transit lines to the newly created Metropolitan Transit District.

In pigeon-holing the measure the council completely ignored the mayor's 700-word message requesting its acceptance.

TERMS IT A JOKE.

By vote of 16-6 and over the vehement protests of Councilor Ward, who sought to have the proposition held for Mr. Curley's approval, the city governing body agreed to sell five acres of land on Parker hill, Roxbury, to the Robert Breck Brigham Hospital for Incurables for $34,800.

Ward's statement tore into little pieces the 37 "accomplishments of the Nichols administration" recently printed in the City Record. The whole he termed a "huge joke."

The claim that $7,500,000 is invested in the municipal airport "is a deliberate attempt to deceive the people since the total expenditure to date is not in excess of $300,000," he said.

The claim to new and extensive street lighting comes under the "huge joke" head because the only white way established in the city during the four years is a short stretch on Massachusetts ave., Ward declared.

CITES STREET SIGNS

The Public Library improvement expenditure of $500,000 "is overestimated at least 50 per cent," he said, and as for the new system of assessing property, it is in its primary stages and will take at least 18 months to complete.

The street signs, which the mayor takes so much pride, cost scarcely in excess of $20,000 and it has taken four years to get them up."

Ward said Mayor Nichols could claim no credit for the Metropolitan water system because he has neither control over the board that drafts the plans nor representation upon it.

"The new traffic control board has contributed more to tying up traffic than anything previously known in the history of the city," Ward claimed.

He termed the administration claims on street surfacing "an exceptional example of window dressing, the unfortunate feature being that a large proportion of the work is of such temporary character as to require replacing in a very short time."

NAB 50 'REDS' IN CAPITAL

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP)—A party of 50 youngsters, declaring themselves members of the Communist party, today made a demonstration in front of the Mexican embassy, demanding the release of 30 members of the party claimed to be held prisoners in Mexico.

Within 30 minutes after the demonstration began the entire party had been arrested, placed in patrol wagons and taken to a police station.

Members of the party included both negroes and white persons. They said they were from Baltimore and Washington.

The demonstration consisted principally of short cheers and songs demanding the release of the Communists prisoners and condemning President-elect Ortiz Rubio of Mexico, President Hoover and the present government in Mexico.

Banners carried by the group bore lines saying "Hoover and Rubio, both enemies of the workers." Others said "Down with American imperialism in Mexico."

Escaped Prisoner Held With 5 Others

Salem, Jan. 4 (AP)—Six men, one of them an escaped prisoner from the Salem jail, who were arrested in Hamilton on New Year's Eve, were all held for the grand jury when arraigned in district court today. They were charged with larceny of an automobile and with carrying firearms and burglar tools in the machine.

The men were Frank Currie of Gloucester, who escaped from jail December 26 with two other men; Lewis B. Abbruzzese, Wilfred and Joseph G. H. Banville and William J. Regan, all of Lynn, and Joseph Arribea of Swampscott.

Vare Announces He's Senate Candidate

Philadelphia, Jan. 4 (AP)—William S. Vare announced today that he is still a candidate for the United States Senate and that his name will appear on the Republican primary ballot in May.

Vare, who was refused a seat in the Senate on the ground that his primary expenses in the senatorial campaign of 1926 were excessive, made this known as he was waiting here for a train for Florida.

Ready to Hop Off in Hunt for Eielson

Fairbanks, Alaska, Jan. 4 (AP)—Held to the ground yesterday by low visibility and a light fall of snow, the Canadian fliers, Capt. Pat Reid and Clifford Swartman, hoped to take off for Nulato en route to Nome today to engage in the search for Pilot Carl Ben Eielson and Mechanic Earl Borland, missing since early November, provided the weather would permit.

Congress May Probe Capitol 'Mystery Fire'

Washington, Jan. 4—A searching investigation into the cause of the mystery fire which damaged a portion of the famous document room and the artist's model room of the national Capitol last night, was instituted today by David Lynn, architect of the Capitol.

Congress may also be brought into the inquiry as a result of the rumors growing out of the blaze, it was indicated. Lynn expressed the opinion that Congressional matters concerned with the management of the Capitol may inquire into the fire.

The damage was variously estimated at from $100 to $3000, but the full extent was not expected to be determined until during the day when danger of seepage of water through the five-foot walls of the Capitol had passed.

Charles Moberly, Capitol artist, in whose studio the fire began, was questioned by Lynn, but threw little light on the origin of the blaze.

Moberly, who was found unconscious in his smoke-filled room, appeared very nervous and said he did not know how the fire began. He told Lynn he seldom used cigarettes but smoked a pipe and cigars.

Lynn said he had learned the alarm had been turned in by a man named Hall, who had been in Moberly's studio before the fire originated. Hall will be questioned.

HUNT SLAYER AT GIRL'S HOME

Saugus and Melrose police today were seeking three heavily armed youths wanted in connection with the murder of William F. Fendell, 64, Turnpike storekeeper.

According to the police the trio being sought is well supplied with firearms and ammunition, and is expected to make a desperate resistance.

Melrose police were keeping a watch on the home of a girl, believed to have been keeping company with Paul Smith, alias Paul Hanson, 20, of Maiden.

Capt. John Stuart of Saugus police, who is leading the search for the trio of thugs who murdered Fendell, declared he expected to make an arrest within 24 hours.

Brockton Bank Man Held for Larceny

Brockton, Jan. 4 (AP)—Chester L. Wills, former assistant treasurer of the People's Savings Bank, was held in $5000 for the Plymouth County grand jury today on a charge of larceny from the bank.

Although the amount named in the complaint was only $100, attorneys for the bank told the court the shortage was about $12,000. Police said Wills admitted losing the money in the stock market. His mother provided his bonds.

Extols Schurman as Friend of Germany

Berlin, Jan. 4 (AP)—All Germany listened to a farewell oration on Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, retiring American ambassador, broadcast by Prof. Arthur Liebert, president of the Kant Society, today.

Prof. Liebert voiced the regret of the German people in losing a friend to whom the country "owes deep gratitude for his warm heart and understanding mind."

Husband Kills Wife, Her Sister, Himself

Covington, Ky., Jan. 4 (AP)—Bert Watson, 40, shot and killed his wife, Mrs. Gladys Watson, 35, and her sister, Greda Schroeder, 42, then committed suicide by shooting himself at his wife's home here today. The double murder and suicide was the results of Mrs. Watson's divorce action.

WALES' SHIP IN FIERCE GALE

S. S. Kenilworth Castle, Jan. 4 (AP)—After plowing down the English channel in the teeth of a fierce westerly gale throughout the night, the steamer Kenilworth Castle, bearing the Prince of Wales to South Africa, passed Ushant this morning and met the full force of the gale as it swept across the Bay of Biscay.

The ship lunged and tossed violently on the great swells of the bay, whose turmoil was lightened by brilliant sunshine. The Prince kept to his cabin and rested.

BUSINESS MEN HEAR LAMONT

The 1930 census will cost $40,000,000 and will provide work for 125,000 persons.

This was the announcement of Robert P. Lamont, secretary of commerce, in addressing a group of New England business men today at the Chamber of Commerce.

Secretary Lamont, explaining important changes in the 1930 census taking plans, said that 20,000 questions will be asked.

"Don't worry," he hastened to add, "for that figure is only the total. Individuals will be asked only about 20 questions or less."

The Hoover cabinet member, who succeeded his chief as commerce secretary, arrived in Boston early today and will leave tonight for Washington. He was the guest of John S. Lawrence, New England Council official, at breakfast, and

U. S. Attorney Puts O. K. on 3 Killings

Providence, Jan. 4—U. S. Attorney Henry M. Boss, Jr., today absolved the crew of the CG 290 from all blame in the killing of three rum-runners on the Black Duck.

The report to him from the coast guard and the results of his own investigation, conducted by Department of Justice agents, show conclusively that the patrol craft conformed to every regulation in operating fire on the speedy smuggler last Sunday.

There is no stipulation in the law governing the service that requires a warning shot to be fired across the bows of a pursued ship, he pointed out.

The law reads that a coast guard boat "may fire at or into" a ship that has refused to heave to.

Boss said: "The report received by me indicates that the Black Duck appeared out of the fog off Dumpling bell buoy, where the C. G. 290 was lying to, with stacks of liquor piled on the deck of the speed boat.

"The signals for stopping the speed boat were given by sounding the horn, waiving the searchlight, turning the searchlight on the coast guard ensign and hailing the speed boat to heave to.

"She paid no attention to these signals, but put on speed to get away, and before she was obscured the machine gun was ordered to be fired at her stern.

"As the gun was about to be fired

BITTER ATTACKS MADE ON NICHOLS IN CITY COUNCIL MEETING

CHARGES BIG SHAKEDOWN FOR AUTO

Ward and Dowling Score the Mayor's Administration as Expensive Joke on Hub

outrage on the part of the mayor to refer to Exchange st., in view of the fact that change of name of this particular street has already been passed in order that the stench in the nostrils of some people in Boston may be mitigated."

The plans for the Congress st. bridge were drafted by the preceding administration and the foundation is now completed now, Ward charged.

While arguing delay in the sale of city land to the hospital, Ward made his reference to "Ali Baba and the arch thieves."

The filing of Mayor Nichols' request for acceptance of Elevated legislation was foreseen in view of the fact that passage of the act would have transferred to the Metropolitan Transit Commission the job of building the $16,000,000 East Boston vehicular toll tunnel and abolished the Boston Transit Commission.

HITS RECODIFIERS

Dowling touched off his verbal fireworks toward the close of the session, opening his display with an attack upon the commission named during the first year of the Nichols administration to recodify the city statutes. Its members he designated as "panhandling lawyers" and the body in its entirety "a phony commission."

The members of this commission are Harold J. Field, John T. Myron and David A. Mansfield. Dowling referred to Myron as "an office boy for Innes." The commission has been paid $20,000, he said, and has produced nothing.

He then turned his attention to the Nichols farewell dinner and the presentation of an automobile to the mayor, making his charges of "blackjacking" with reference to contractors and city workers.

SLAP AT WARD 4.

Of Henry I. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce and "father of the East Boston tunnel," Dowling said: "He thinks he knows more than all the mayors who have ever served Boston."

Dr Seth Arnold, who had tried to stop the attacks, is the Ward 4 representative and of his district, Dowling said: "The only things on the level in Ward 4 are the bridges."

Thus having bid farewell to the administration, the council members adjourned to the Parker House to break bread with the mayor at the customary end-of-the-year luncheon tendered by the retiring executive.

"DURLEYS ARE COMING"

For the mayor, with the exception of the council meeting, it was a quiet day. He shook hands with some 600 city employes and was presented with United States and city flags by the City Employes Post, American Legion.

The Canadian National Railways Scotch band serenaded him with the bagpipes and he was asked if there was any particular tune he favored.

"The Campbells are Coming," said the mayor.

"Why not make it 'The Curleys Are Coming?'" someone suggested.

STATEMENT BY ELY AWAITED

Springfield, Jan. 4 (AP)—Eyes of the politically-minded in the Second District were focused today on Joseph B. Ely of Westfield for a statement on his attitude toward the Democratic nomination for Congress for next month as successor to the late W. K. Kopper.

Announcement was made yesterday that Ely would be a candidate, but he has delayed a definite statement. Sentiment is divided, one group holding he is the strongest man the party could nominate, while another points to the weakness of his being a nonresident of the district, though, except technically, he is about as much a resident of this city, where he has law offices, as of his home city.

Friends of Attorney James H. Mulcare today were urging him to seek the Democratic nomination, but he said he was not ready to make a statement. Attorney William J. Granfield has announced he would be a candidate.

KEPT FROM INQUEST

Boss, in whom the Federal Government has invested full power in all proceedings that may result from the shooting, is considering the advisability of having the 290's crew appear as "voluntary witnesses" at the Newport County grand jury proceedings January 13.

If he sanctions their appearance they will not ask for immunity, he said, and the purpose of their appearance would be to place all available facts before the jury, called by Atty.-Gen. Oscar L. Heitzen to consider possible indictments for manslaughter.

3 Coast Guards Beaten by a New London Mob

New London, Jan. 4—Attacked by a gang of men who leaped upon them from behind freight cars, three coast guardsmen were severely beaten early today as they crossed the railroad tracks on their way back to quarters.

A machine gun was mounted at the coast guard pier, as a result, to repel any reckless attempt to invade United States property.

At the same time several squads of guardsmen were ordered into the city proper to round up guardsmen on leave and escort them back to the base. Many returned under guard and no further attempt was made to molest them.

Coxswain George A. Cadoret of Pawtucket, R. I., attached to the destroyer Ericsson, reported the attack to officials of the coast guard immediately after the assault near the base.

The three guardsmen were returning from the center of the city to the base when the attackers jumped out from behind some freight cars.

Although outnumbered, the guardsmen fought their assailants. For several minutes the battle continued over the street near the railroad tracks.

The yells of the participants attracted residents nearby, and riot calls were sent to the base and to the police headquarters.

From headquarters a squad of police in charge of Sergt. Patrick Murphy rushed to the scene. When they arrived the assailants made their getaway down the railroad tracks.

The guardsmen were badly beaten and were taken to the medical unit at the base, where they were given first aid treatment.

According to the New London police the guardsmen did not have a chance. They were outnumbered to begin with, and were attacked without warning.

Since the killing of three members of the crew of the rum boat Black Duck, followed by the alleged whoopee parties among guardsmen here, feeling has run high against the guardsmen, and they have been the target for jeers throughout the city.

The attack today was a climax. New London police say the attackers are known to them. A thorough investigation is being conducted.

For the present all guardsmen visiting New London proper will be escorted back to the base here by a provost guard.

Mayor Asks to Have Girls Transferred

The mayor wants them transferred to other city positions within the competitive class.

Commissioner Goodwin, after conferring with the attorney-general's department, said the commission lacked authority to approve the transfers.

The commission approved the appointment of Patrick F. X. Negin as assistant school house custodian of Boston school house commission without competitive examination.

Gem Thieves Loot Window of Jewels

After smashing a plate glass window with a brick, thieves early today stole a large amount of inexpensive jewelry from Homer's jewelry store in Winter st.

The loot included 36 rings and several pendants and brooches, but aside from saying that they were inexpensive, officials of the company would not place any valuation on them in their report to the police until a further checkup is made. The thieves escaped in an automobile which they had parked at the curbing with engine running.

Police Seize Six in N. Y. Opium Raids

New York, Jan. 4 (AP)—Two prosaic-looking brownstone front houses in the Flatbush section of Brooklyn were raided today by police and federal narcotic agents, who said their interiors were fitted out in oriental splendor as opium-smoking resorts.

Six Chinese, including Ching Wing, owner, and also the manager and an actor in a Chinese theater group which operates the Chinese Theater in Manhattan, were arrested and 4 pounds of opium layouts and $2000 worth of the narcotic seized.

GERMANS SEEK INTEREST UPON REPARATIONS

Want Payments Deferred to End of Each Month as Against Young Plan

The Hague, Jan. 4 (AP)—Actual work on final phases of settlement of the reparation problem began here today as the financial subcommittee of the second Hague conference began examination of the reports of the sub committees of the first conference.

Whether reparations payments are due at the beginning or end of the month was the first problem considered. The Germans lay claim to an allowance of 10,000,000 marks annually if required to turn over their instalments at the beginning of the month because of the loss in interest on the money.

The creditors' position is that instalments must be paid at the beginning of the month because all calculations in the Young plan are dated from the first of each month.

Austrian reparations due countries of the Little Entente have come up for consideration. The Austrian representatives were invited to attend a meeting this afternoon of the non-German reparations commission to discuss a report of the sub-committee and to set forth their views.

LAMONT TALKS ABOUT CENSUS

CHANGES IN CENSUS.

Three policy changes in census taking were stressed in the Chamber of Commerce talk. The first was that much of the information gathered will be announced immediately, instead of waiting several years as has been done in the past.

"Supervisors will be required to give out a preliminary statement as to population, etc., in each town, or district, as soon as enumerators finish their work," he explained.

Two new subjects have been added to the usual questions to be asked by the enumerators. The first will relate to values of rents of the home.

UNEMPLOYMENT QUIZ

"This will serve as an indication of standards of living and general social welfare of the people," the cabinet officer commented.

The other change is that questions will be asked regarding unemployment, as "the need for information regarding unemployment is obvious."

"While we hope that by next April business conditions will be normal," said Mr. Lamont, "it will be of great advantage to know what is the normal number of persons who, as a result of improvement in the methods of production and the shifting of industries, are temporarily thrown out of work."

This census will be the "most comprehensive report regarding industry that has ever been compiled," commented the secretary.

3D VICTIM OF BOMB DIES

Seat Pleasant, Md., Jan. 4 (INS)—Death claimed another victim of the New Year's Day Christmas package bomb outrage early today when four-year-old Dorothy Hall succumbed to her injuries at Sibley hospital, Washington. The death toll is now three, Mrs. Naomi Hall Brady, 16-year-old expectant mother, for whom the package was intended, her 19-months-old brother, Samuel, and little Dorothy.

Mrs. Nora Hall, Naomi's mother, one eye gouged out and suffering from stomach injuries, is at Providence hospital in Washington and physicians fear for her life. Leslie Hall, 16-year-old son, who lost two fingers, is out of danger. The 36-year-old mother of Mrs. Hall has been discharged from the hospital and is said to be recovering from shock and slight injuries she suffered.

U. S. IMMUNE IN WORLD COURT, SAYS N. Y. BAR

We Would Not Be Entangled Without Specific Consent, Vandenberg Is Told

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP)—Assertions that American adherence to the World Court under the Root formula would not involve this country in litigation before that tribunal without its consent have been made to Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, by the New York Bar Association.

The Michigan senator, a member of the Senate foreign relations committee, made public today correspondence he had with the association, Vandenberg asked three questions, and the answers to each were affirmative. The questions were:

Is it your conclusive judgment that the United States cannot be made a litigant in the World Court without the specific consent of the United States in each instance?

Is it your conclusive judgment that advisory opinions cannot be rendered by the court in a matter in which the United States has an interest except as the United States assents?

Is it your conclusive opinion that the court is not calculated to render an advisory opinion over the protest of the United States in a case in which the United States claims an interest?

The formula was drafted at Geneva last summer by Elihu Root, chairman of the association's committee on international law, to meet objections of adherence to the court raised in the Senate.

It has been signed on behalf of the American government and President Hoover has announced he will ask the Senate to ratify it in the next few months.

BORAH DRAWS LINE ON MEN WHO DRINK

Law Breakers Are Unfit to be District Attorneys, He Declares

Washington, Jan. 4 (INS)—Taking a new tack in his fight for better prohibition enforcement, Senator Borah branded "some of the men suggested for appointment as United States attorneys as being intolerable."

"A man who drinks liquor in violation of the law is unfit to serve as district attorney," said Borah.

Such drinking is evidence that he has been in contact with other lawbreakers and the morale of his men is shattered by such a leader, Borah said.

His served notice that in future all nominations for United States attorneys will be carefully examined by the Senate judiciary committee, of which Borah is ranking Republican member and Senator Norris of Nebraska, a dry, chairman.

Senator Borah evidently is not seeking appointment as a member of the forthcoming congressional committee to cooperate with the President's law enforcement commission in its prohibition studies. Advised that Senator Fess (R.) of Ohio had nominated him to serve on the commission, Borah ironically said:

"I thank Senator Fess for the solicitude he has shown me. I cannot very well turn down an appointment that has not been tendered to me."

Fess himself was believed to be slated for the chairmanship of the committee. Senator Jones (R.) of Washington, co-author of the Stalker-Jones law, and 10 others said he will not accept appointment on the committee, because his duties as chairman of the Senate appropriations committee will consume all of his time.

Another valuable piece of information that Capt. Stuart received today was a telephone call from a driver of a transportation company, whose name the police withheld. This driver said he picked up a man on the Providence road, outside of Providence, early Friday morning, who said that he had to get to Providence quickly as he was meeting a friend who was to take him to New York.

The truck driver said later he saw a photograph of Smith in a newspaper and declared that the man he gave a ride to was positively Smith. Raymond Blodgett of Barrett st., Lynn, phoned Capt Stuart that he was talking to a man a short distance from Fendell's store Thursday night while he was waiting for a bus to go to Lynn and the man wanted to know how often the buses ran. Blodgett told the police that the man he talked to was positively Smith as he identified him from a photograph in the papers.

Another visit will be made to the camps in Linden Heights, Malden, and at Wigg Cliffondale today by Saugus, Malden and Melrose police.

Two guns were used in the killing. Six shots in all were fired at him, five of them from a .22-caliber revolver. The sixth, the fatal shot, that struck him in the heart, was from a gun of larger caliber.

The autopsy disclosed the large caliber heart bullet; three wounds caused by that number of .22-caliber bullets and a bullet of the same caliber was found in one of his pockets.

ROUTED BY CHINESE

Capt. Van Amberg, State firearms expert, after examining the larger of the bullets that struck Fendell declared that the gun from which it had been fired was not of .38-caliber as had been reported at first but was slightly larger and patterned after foreign makes. This discovery by Capt. Van Amberg weakens to some extent the theory that the guns with which the murder was committed had been stolen two weeks ago from a Wakefield garage.

The police believe that the three men involved in the killing of Fendell are the ones who of late have been perpetrating holdups and attempted holdups in Medford and Melrose and may be the same men who attempted to rob Frank Yee, laundryman, at Tremont st., Lynn.

Fendell was shot some time after 7 o'clock and two hours later three young men were routed by Yee, who buried a flatiron at them. If they turned the trick at Yee's they did it while big posses were scouring the woods along the pike some distance from the scene of the killing.

RELEASED NOV. 21

Smith was identified as the gunman in five holdups in Greater Boston during the past few weeks.

Smith's family lives in Sidney st., Malden, but he has not been living there for some time. Relatives yesterday told police that he was somewhere in New York.

On Nov. 21 Smith was released from jail after he had served a two months' sentence for breaking and entering. Previous to that few police claim he has a record dating back to 1926.

PROBE CAPITOL 'MYSTERY FIRE'

artist's model rooms were separated only by a thin partition it was difficult to determine just where the fire started, Lynn, after an explanation, said that unquestionably it started in the model room.

Firemen told him after the fire that the electric wiring was in order and that the fire could not have originated from that source. Moberly, it was said by Lynn, did not smoke cigarettes, but at times smoked cigars.

The Capitol fire, coming on the heels of the Christmas eve blaze which damaged the White House offices, gave rise to many rumors. Tales were spread through the Capitol that enemies of the government had resorted to fire, but such rumors were promptly discounted by officials.

OLD RECORDS MENACED.

The blaze was extinguished within an hour. A direct result of the fire may be the speeding of a new archives building, which is a part of the vast building program now under way in the capital. Senator Hayes (R.) of New Hampshire, chairman of the Senate building committee, said he would press for immediate action.

"Two fires within a short time in the White House and Capitol give us another argument for the building of an archives building at once," said Keyes.

Records threatened by last night's fire consisted of old bills of congresses several years ago. Fear was expressed by some that smoke may have damaged the world famous paintings which adorn the Capitol rotunda and other places, but Capitol officials said they believed they were unharmed.

LOWELL SAFE LOOTED TODAY

Lowell, Jan. 4—A safe in the office of the Lowell Lumber Co., in Hale st., was opened early today and $1500 in cash, endorsed checks and money taken.

The robber, apparently familiar with conditions, opened the safe with keys hidden in the office. Lieut. Martin Maher is investigating.

LAST OF 'THREE MUSKETEERS OF ART' JOINS OTHERS IN DEATH

BRIGGS DIES LIKE HIS 2 FRIENDS

Famous Marthas Vineyard Trio Scaled the Ladder of Fame and Love Together

The last of "The Three Musketeers of Art" has gone with the passing of Claire Briggs.

Twice the burial of his comrades in work and play called Briggs to a little cemetery on Martha's Vineyard. The third time death beckoned it was to him.

The affection of three men, one for another, their vocation and avocation, and the love of two of them for one woman, are bound up in the story of "The Three Musketeers of Art."

They worked together, played together, fought together and loved together. They died a few years apart but the deaths that claimed each were strangely alike.

SO THREE MEET AGAIN

"Finis" was written to the story yesterday at the Neurological Institute in New York, where the famous cartoonist passed away, victim of a malady similar to that which had taken his two close friends.

Claire Briggs, Percy Elton Cowen and Worth Brehm were "The Three Musketeers of Art," each a specialist in his own line, each with a fortune amassed by pen and brush.

Cowen and Brehm loved one woman who was the wife of each in turn. Briggs loved her as a sister.

Long before the war, their work, their similar likes and dislikes drew Briggs, Cowen and Brehm together. When war came to separate them for a time, two at the front, one behind the battle lines, doing his bit, they corresponded regularly in letters that should be saved for posterity.

ARTISTS THREE

It was a round robin of correspondances, Briggs to Cowen, Cowen to Brehm, Brehm to Briggs, and each letter was illustrated after the manner of its sender. After the war the three worked together in one another's studio, Briggs at the cartoons that made him famous the world over, Cowen at marine art with whaling ships a specialty, Brehm at portraits and landscapes with considerable magazine illustration, much of it for the stories of Ben Ames Williams.

Cowen, a descendant of whaling ancestors with relatives on Martha's Vineyard, bought considerable real estate on the island and constructed a studio camp on the shores of Menemsha Pond, at Chilmark.

There Briggs and Brehm went to work and play, pursuing their art and shooting ducks and geese in the fall with their host and Daniel E. Look of West Tisbury as guide.

THEN A LOVE ENTERS.

Brehm later bought the old Habarsham estate on the hill overlooking Menemsha Pond and Cowen's place, and after that the three close friends were nearly always together at one house or the other.

Cowen fell in love with Jane Look, daughter of his West Tisbury friend. He married her and they lived together at Chilmark with Brehm and Briggs like members of the family.

Four years ago, Cowen collapsed on the street in New Bedford, where he had gone with a friend whose book or whaling he was to illustrate. He was removed to St. Luke's Hospital and surgeons, baffled by his case, finally diagnosed it as sarcoma, a cancerous growth on his back attributed to the carrying of a pack in the war.

FIRST ONE PASSES

Three months later he died on the Vineyard after expressing the wish that his wife marry again and marry his friend, Brehm. He was buried in the West Tisbury Cemeterm with Briggs and Brehm and Jane Look Cowen the chief mourners.

Two years later Brehm and Jane Look Cowen were married. The friendship and close association of Brehm and Briggs continued.

A year ago Brehm died, victim of a growth similar to that which killed his friend.

TUMOR ON BRAIN.

Once again Briggs journeyed to the West Tisbury cemetery, where Brehm was laid at rest beside Cowen.

His two best friends gone, the cartoonist, "lone musketeer," plunged into a fervor of work that may have aggravated his own condition. He suffered from a complication of ailments that at last prevented him from working at all His eyesight failed rapidly.

An operation was performed and he rallied. Six weeks ago he was stricken with bronchial pneumonia Yesterday he succumbed.

He suffered from a tumor of the brain, surgeons declared, a malignant growth like that which killed Cowen and Brehm.

Funeral services will be conducted Monday in Campbell's Funeral Church, in New York. Until then the body of Briggs will lie in state in the Gold Room of the Funeral Church.

HUB MAN WINS RUM DECISION

Bangor, Me., Jan. 4 (AP)—The U. S. District Court of Appeals in a decision made public today ordered a judgment of the District Court of Maine set aside and a new trial in the case of Lawrence Flynn of Boston, convicted of a liquor law violation.

Flynn and three others were convicted in November, 1928, of charges of manufacture, possession and sale of liquor. Flynn, sentenced to a year and a day at the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, appealed on the ground that evidence introduced against objection should have been ruled out as secured under an invalid search warrant.

Former Hub Prisoner in the Toils Again

New York, Jan. 4 (AP)—A man who described himself as Harry Keegan, who said he had been conducting a photograph studio under the alias of Harry D. Waterson in Yonkers, and who carried a card of the "Associated News Services" of Chicago, was in the police lineup today charged with robbery.

A member of the pickpocket squad and Henry L. Cohen, 66, and feeble, who had just drawn his savings of $994 from the bank, and Keegan were all passengers on a 125th st. trolley car.

The detective said he saw Keegan extract the roll or money from Cohen's pocket, so deftly that Cohen didn't realize it. When Keegan left the car the detective followed him, arrested him and arrived, with the money and his prisoner, at a police station just as Cohen rushed in to report his loss.

Police records showed that Keegan had been arrested in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Cleveland, Buffalo, Newark, N. J., and Port Chester, N. Y., three times in Boston and once in Canada.

BARE 3 MILLION GAS TAX FRAUD

San Francisco, Jan. 4 (AP)—Request for an immediate investigation of charges that employes of several of the largest petroleum companies in the nation are involved in purported gasoline tax fraud against the state of California has been made in a letter to Atty.-Gen. U. S. Webb by A. L. Weil, general counsel for the General Petroleum Corporation.

The alleged swindle, by which certain employes of the companies are alleged to have mulcted the state of between $3,000,000 and $5,000,000, was perpetrated, according to reports received by Weil and revealed in his letter to Webb, by selling within the state gasoline on which no tax had been paid, contrary to law.

ALLEN GREETS PIPERS BAND

He's a Piping Governor

The Pipers' Band of the Canadian National Railways, in full Highland dress of Clan Frazier, today paid respects to Governor Allen at the State House as a part of its good will tour.

The governor extended a hearty greeting to the 14 members of the band, engaged in a few pleasantries, presented each with a souvenir card and escorted them to the Hall of Flags where he pointed out and explained the various standards and flags.

After leaving the Hall of Flags the governor publicly welcomed the group on the front steps of the State House where the brief exercises were broadcast over station WBZ. In returning the welcome the band played several old Scottish tunes.

Needs of Lowell Under Discussion

Lowell, Jan. 4—At the rehabilitation of Lowell discussion by a special committee appointed recently by Mayor Braden, taxation, labor laws, Southern competition, wages in mills and stores, establishment of a clearing house to secure a fairer division of employes in families and other subjects were considered.

Pres. A. R. Campbell, Charles A D. Grasse, John Molloy, Harry Bass, Thomas A. Higgins, Bennett Silverblatt, John A. Hunnewell, Richard Welch and Secretary Paul Foley participated.

Arthur Perry will preside. Among speakers will be Capt Charles T. Beaupre of the Massachusetts State police and Dr. Horace D. Taft, headmaster of the Taft School for Boys, brother of Chief Justice Taft.

Mediation Avoids Strike on Erie Road

New York, Jan. 4 (AP)—G. Wallace W. Hanger, member of the U. S. Board of Mediation, announced today that an agreement has been reached between trainmen and officials of the Erie Railroad, averting a strike of 3500 men which has been pending since Dec. 5.

EXPLORERS IN PERIL FROM EARTHQUAKE

Wilkins Reports Ship Shaken, Holes Torn in Ground at Deception Island

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS
Commander of the Wilkins-Hearst Antarctic Expedition.

Copyright, 1930, by the Boston American and Universal Service, Inc. Copyright in Great Britain, France, Germany and all other countries. reproduction prohibited in part or in full.

Deception Island, Antarctica, Jan. 4—(Via S. S. Melville and KUP, San Francisco Examiner wireless station).—Deception Island was swept by a great earthquake.

Huge holes were made in the ground and the ship was shaken severely, causing panic among those on board.

Two bridges at the land station were smashed and four men shaken from an oil tank. One man was killed and the three others severely injured.

There was no damage to any of our equipment, nor was any member of the expedition injured.

Supplementing my message of January 1, I am now able to give the details of the flight which permitted us to explore and chart 300 additional miles of the coastline of Hearst Land. After many disappointments and reverses, we at last succeeded in completing a "voyage" of discovery over the edge of the immense Polar cap.

Fifty minutes of unerring flying brought the black peaks of Charcot Land (which we found to be an island) to our horizon.

After a total flying time of one hour and 20 minutes, we arrived at the coast of Charcot Island, and swung wide to photograph it.

The island is roughly hammer-shaped, forking to the west. It is about 60 miles across from east to west and 40 miles from north to south. The highest elevation on the island is about 2000 feet.

Coastward we could see Mt. Ranck; and the Finley Islands were also there on the horizon.

We could see low, level sea ice interspersed with icebergs continuing through the straits.

This is the main feature of our discoveries of last year, and bore out the fact that a channel exists. (Captain Wilkins evidently refers to the channel between Graham Land and the main body of the polar continent, which he had named Stefansson Strait.)

We circled Charcot Island, South and westward, to approximately 80 degrees west longitude, there was a low coast, undoubtedly a continuance of Hearst Land, partially broken with mountains. There was nothing the low, sloping snow-covered coast in the indistinct distance.

We cruised around this location for nearly two hours, charting the land and taking photographs.

Hal, of our gasoline supply was now consumed. Reluctantly we turned and retraced our course to the Scoresby.

Our efforts will now be concentrated in search of flat ice from which to take off for the "great adventure," the Ross sea flight over the entire Antarctic continent and a visit to Admiral Byrd's Little America.

EDDIE CANTOR Rises to Say:

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4—Everybody, including the British, must remember, with awe, the Boston Tea Party.

History repeats itself.

Thursday Boston gave a T. U. T. party as a protest against the recent coast guard killings.

Bostonians held quite a mass meeting, after which, on the famous Common, they tore down and trampled posters belonging to a coast guard recruiting station.

Good. I don't blame them for being stirred up.

Now, if the Boston citizenry will only get "het up" enough to get rid of its Watch and Ward Society, the organization which recently put a fine, respectable bookshop owner in jail for having sold a book considered immoral only by the Watch and Ward Society.

Then, if Boston really get "steamed up" it could invite the Theater Guild to bring "Strange Interlude" to the city, so that her citizens would not have to travel out of town to see this great American play.

P. S. By the way, have they "cleaned up" the burlesque show any?

OPERA SINGER DENIES RIFT

Chicago, Jan. 4 (AP)—Both morning newspapers today said that Edith Mason, soprano of the Chicago Civic Opera, and her husband, Dr. Maurice A. Bernstein, were living apart but that both had strongly denied rumors of separation.

The couple were married October 6 of last year, 10 weeks after Miss Mason obtained a divorce from her third husband, Giorgio Polacco, director of the Civic Opera.

Miss Mason declined to make a statement. Dr. Bernstein, who has been living at his Highland Park home, said he had retired temporarily to the suburbs to carry on work requiring peace and quiet.

"I visit my wife often," the Tribune quoted him as saying, "and I am very much in love with her, and hope she still is in love with me."

Police Probe Death of Chelmsford Girl

Lowell, Jan. 4—A secret investigation into the death of Miss Reginia McNally, school teacher, who died under mysterious circumstances at St. John's hospital, was started by the Chelmsford police today.

Officer Harold C. King of Chelmsford, and Special Officer Charles Hamilton of the Lowell deparment, left for Haverstraw, N. Y., in connection with the investigation.

Miss McNally, a native of North Chelmsford, returned there Saturday from Haverstraw, N. Y., to spend the New Year's holiday with her cousin, Mrs. John F. Roane of Middlesex st., with whom she had lived for many years.

NOBILITY HURT IN PRE-NUPTIAL ROME FETE

Prince and Princesses Hurt When Toy Balloons Are Exploded

Rome, Jan. 4 (AP)—Several members of the Italian nobility were burned slightly today when a patent lighter exploded toy balloons which were part of the decorations at a party given by the Princess Jane Di San Faustino, formerly Miss Jane Campbell of Staten Island, N. Y.

Those injured were the Princess Marina Ruspoli, daughter of Count Volpi, former minister of finance; the Prince and Princess Del Bracco, the Baroness Elena Campagna, Lieut. Cottafavi and a waiter.

The explosion occurred at the Ambassadors' Hotel in the course of a brilliant dance heralding the forthcoming week of royal wedding festivities.

The women suffered greatest injuries when the burning rubber fell on their bare necks, arms and backs. However, as high necks and long sleeves will be de rigeur for the wedding Wednesday, almost all will be privileged to attend.

Prince Humbert and his parents were cheered roundly today by crowds of Roman citizens going to work when they attended a mass at the Pantheon on the anniversary of the death of the Queen mother, Margherita.

Princess' Train Routed So as to Outwit Assassins

Brussels, Jan. 4 (AP)—Taking a circuitous route to avoid enemies of her betrothed, Princess Maria Jose today was en route to Rome, where next Wednesday she will become bride of Humbert, Prince of Piedmont and Italian heir. She should reach Rome Monday morning.

The three special trains which left here at 9:40 last night entered France an hour later at Jeumont. Aulnoys, proceeding toward Basle, Switzerland, by way of Charleville, Longuyon and Nancy. A shorter, more direct route was abandoned because of danger of anti-Fascist activities.

Extraordinary police precautions marked the journey of the royal party. Police chiefs along railway station and surrounding streets entirely cut spectators before King Albert, Queen Elizabeth, Princess Marie Jose, the crown prince and princess, and Prince Charles arrived.

Mussolini Inspects Picked Pilots to Fly for Royal Pair

Ciampino Airdrome, Italy, Jan. 4 (AP)—Premier Mussolini, accompanied by Cabinet Minister Balbo, today personally inspected the aerial division which will participate in the review Jan. 9 in honor of Crown Prince Humbert and Princess Marie Jose.

Mussolini addressed the 400 picked pilots, reaffirming his faith in the future of aviation and assuring them of his constant preparation with their problems and the development of their service.

HEFLIN WANTS BAN LIFTED

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 5 (AP)—Removal before February 1 of the restriction excluding as candidates from the 1930 primary those who opposed the Democratic presidential nominee in 1928 has been asked of the Alabama Democratic executive committee.

Attending a mass meeting at which the request was made, Senator J. Thomas Heflin said: "If this is not done the voters will be given their chance to set.

A resolution asking on the committee to rescind its action, drafted and read by Ben F. Ray, a member of the committee that protested the ruling, was adopted. Several thousand persons were present.

"I am not seeking to organize an independent party," Heflin declared. "I am asking the committee as a Democrat to meet and rescind its action, and if it does not, we will have a chance to fight it out at the polls."

Heflin asserted that by the terms of the ruling of the executive committee, "every priest and Catholic in the state is a vote against the candidate while good Protestants are disfranchised." He said "although large votes were polled in Alabama by Harding and Coolidge, no efforts were made by the committee to disfranchise those voters."

"Alabama would have gone into the Republican column in 1928," he said, "if we had received a fair count."

The Democratic presidential ticket carried Alabama in 1928 by 7000 votes as compared with a margin of nearly 63,000 in 1924.

VIRGINIA LEES TO WED NEXT MONTH

SIX WEEKS FROM TODAY. February 15, in the First Parish Church in Brookline, Miss Virginia Lees is to plight her troth to George Kendall Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. French Campbell of New York city. Miss Lees, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gilbert Lees of Fisher Hill, Brookline, attended Miss May's school and made her debut during the season of 1924-1925. She is an active member of the Junior League and of the Vincent Club. Mr. Campbell was graduated from Williams in 1915 and holds membership in the St. Anthony Club and the Williams Club of New York, as well as the University Club of Boston. Their wedding is to include only members of the families and a very few intimate friends, numbering about 30 in all. Following the ceremony there will be a small reception at the home of the bride.

THE JUNIOR LEAGUE IS always realising new opportunities for its members. The latest of these is a series of five contract bridge lessons under the instruction of Mrs. Prescott Warren of Newton, who is a noted bridge expert. Mrs. Warren has taught not only in Boston but also at the Chevy Chase House in Swampscott, where she resides in the summer. The course is to be held at the League rooms on Commonwealth ave., on Wednesday morning, January 22 and 29, February 5, 12 and 19. It is being conducted under the auspices of the arts and interests committee, of which Mrs. Carlton Richardson is chairman. She is being assisted by Mrs. Charles F. Mills, Mrs. J. S. Rowe and Mrs. Frederick Dumaine, Jr.

MISS BETTY SPALDING, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Spalding of Berkeley st., gave a luncheon to about 15 girls this noon time at her home and took her guests to a matinee of "Naughty Marietta."

MISS GERTRUDE SPELMAN of Brewster st., Cambridge, was at home to a number of her friends on Friday morning, Jan. 3, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Spelman, made her debut during the winter of 1926-27.

THE PROVIDENCE JUNIOR LEAGUE PLAYERS group came to Boston today. After being the guests of the Boston Junior League at a luncheon at the Chilton club, they are presenting, "Little Black Sambo" and "Cinderella," at the Elisabeth Peabody House this afternoon. The part of Cinderella is being enacted by Miss Anna Sail, and others in the cast playing Miss Edith Mackinney in the part of Prince Charming. The Fairy Godmother will be portrayed by Mrs. Charles C. MRS. POOLE REFUTES CHARGE OF PACIFISM

MRS. GRACE MORRISON POOLE, first vice-president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, denied emphatically and unequivocally the charge that her organization was a "most pacifistic organization" and at its head as president was a woman who was "ultra-pacifistic."

The Brockton clubwoman, bringing a message from the General Federation to the sixth district conference of the Massachusetts Federation, presided over by the director, Mrs. William J. McDonald, at the Hotel Statler, immediately launched into a refutation of the "erroneous charges against the greatest organized body of women in the world today."

Since the General Federation has placed before its constituent clubs throughout the country the need of a $2,500,000 foundation fund to continue the work of the federation and decentralize the activities, it has been severely censured and raked over the coals. Many have felt this amount beyond all limits of reason and expectation from clubwomen and attacked the policies and fundamentals of the most powerful body of women in America today.

And so Mrs. Poole, dynamic and peppery, staunch and firm in her position and trust in the General Federation, denounced the untruths surrounding her organization because of the Foundation Fund.

She said that a more erroneous picture couldn't be painted of Mrs. John P. Sippel, General Federation president, than to say she was ultra pacifistic.

"She is neither pacifistic nor militaristic," Mrs. Poole continued. "If anything, she is more on the side bordering on the militaristic class, for she has always believed in adequate defense for her country. She comes from a long line of those who came to the front in times of national need.

"Under the declaration of Mrs. John Sherman, former General Federation president, the organization was anything but a pacifistic organization.

"It has been said that we are closely allied with the Women's Joint Congressional Committee. We were until the present administration at which time we have withdrawn since we felt we could not sympathetically support the things they did not stood for.

SALARY QUESTION

"Mrs. Sippel gets a fabulous salary. Yes, that charge was true. Well, Mrs. Sippel got $400 a month from the General Federation. If I got that in Massachusetts I could live comfortably on that. But Mrs. Sippel has to pay $200 a month for her secretary. High price, you say. Yes, that's living under Washington prices.

"That leaves $200 a month with which to pay her telephone, living expenses, postage, travel and incidentals which mount into high figures. Then she had to entertain so that she comes out every month at the wrong side of the ledger and has actually had to borrow $2000 to support the General Federation.

"I may say vice-presidents get tremendous salaries. Well I get $50 for the two years of my service, and I can assure you that is the amount I cannot indulge in any orgy of extravagance."

The work of the General Federation is not over, Mrs. Poole stated. In western states the work of the General Federation has just begun. She pointed out that moving pictures were here to stay and that clubwomen had to co-operate with their chosen representative in Hollywood, Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, past president of the General Federation.

In an all-day session, this conference of Mrs. MacDonald's for which the Harvard Woman's Club was hostess. The session opened with greetings from the district director and the hostess club president, Mrs. William C. Hanson. All of the official family were present to lend the atmosphere of the state federation to the conference.

At the luncheon, Mrs. Frank G. Allen, the Commonwealth's First Lady, the guest of honor, also spoke highly of Mrs. McDonald, giving it as one of the reasons for her popularity.

"I think too much of your district director to have kept away this grand and delightful meeting," Mrs. Allen smiled.

Atty.-Gen. Joseph Warner, bringing the greetings of the Commonwealth, told the women that they could help the state's chief executive in the successful accomplishment of his 1929-1930 humanitarian program and children's commission recommendations by acquainting themselves with the facts of the measures, and then placing their viewpoint before their representatives and state senators; also by getting their friends to do likewise.

He reminded them that the Governor couldn't make the laws unless the women were behind him and unless they supported intelligent action which would bring about the desired results.

CENSORSHIP

Dr. Albert C. Diffenbach, minister and editor, was the principal speaker of the afternoon. He talked on book censorship, and in an erudite analysis of the question placed before the women the necessity of safeguarding Massachusetts against the stupidities to which it was fast being subjected.

"I for one," he declared, "do not believe that a mayor, or the superintendent of the police or any other appointed public official, unless especially qualified, should tell me what I may see or hear or read. I, for one, do not see why they should determine the matter of censorship. I believe in censorship under proper control.

"I want to stir you to intelligent action on this question which very shortly will be heard on Beacon Hill." Dr. Diffenbach stated. "Our law is childish, not child-like, but childish, to say that morals came from heaven. We make morals. Every generation does an original job. I want a book law, not archaic, not obsolete, not obsolescent.

"I want a law applicable as it reflects the life I live and I like to think I live decently, joyously, abundantly, beautifully, spiritually and effectively. I want a law deep-rooted in moral veracity, but one which does not inhibit the genius of letters, the creative art. "We are not in a period of transition. I wouldn't give you that bromide. But I am inclined to believe with Will Durant, although I don't thoroughly approve of his ideas, that we are rebuilding civilization. That is constructive criticism, my friends. We are building something.

"If the writer is on the level with himself and me; if he really does the work of an artist, a finished job; if he does this with sincerity and tedious labor in an attempt to greaten and glorify life; then such an author with such a book is worthy recognition and should be read.

"I am a staunch believer in the soundness of the rising generation. Their spontaneity is only indicative of the deeper and more sincere realization which go to make up life and contribute to the moving picture of progress."

WELFARE WORK

The morning session, department chairmen briefly reported on the work of their committees and their announcements were made. Mrs. Albert Bradley Carter, chairman of the department of social welfare, announced that on March 13, at the Harry Burroughs Foundation, Somerset st., a luncheon conference would take place to which Governor Allen and the commissioners of mental hygiene, correction, finance and probation would be guests and outline the 1930 social welfare program for the Commonwealth as suggested by His Excellency.

Massachusetts has the largest cancer death rate of any state in the Union, Dr. Annie C. Palmer, public health chairman of the state federation and general federation, stated. She urged the women to have physical examinations when anything was wrong, as only 30 per cent of all cancer trouble can be cured in the early stages.

Mrs. Elsie K. Chamberlain, art chairman, ridiculed the hesitancy of some women when the subject of art was mentioned. She said people were shrinking violets when it came to art. They were afraid of it. She pointed out that they should give as much intellectual attention to this problem as to household duties.

There is an art week in Boston in March and during that week, on March 5 the state federation will sponsor an art conference to take place at the Copley-Plaza, in an all-day session of the problems which affect the home, the person and more particularly that delicacy of delicacies, clothes.

The junior membership question which has received the full-fledged support of the state and general federations was talked on by its chairman, Mrs. Frank P. Bennett, Jr., who told of this being an era for young people with opportunities and sacrifices constantly being made in their behalf.

She reprimanded the sixth district for not having more junior clubs, for, she said, they needed it most for they were mostly city clubs.

Mrs. Charles E. French announced her conference on international relations to take place at the University Club, Jan. 29, starting at 1:30 p. m.

In the absence of Miss Alice F. Titus, editor of the Topics, the official organ of the State Federation, Mrs. Carl Schroeder, first vice-president of the State Federation, wished as her New Year desire, an increased circulation for the magazine of 3000. She said that 7000 were sent out in January. She hoped that 10,000 would be mailed to Bay State clubwomen by Oct. 1, 1930.

Mrs. Thomas J. Walker, third vice-president and Club Institute worker, urged attendance at next month's session, which would be devoted to club finances, with reference to the Foundation Fund, by Mrs. Arthur Davens Potter, Massachusetts director for the General Federation.

Among the special guests of the day were Mrs. Emory Leighton, "the young" 80-year-old club woman, and honorary historian of the federation, and Mrs. Henry Mulgar, past president of the State federation.

LEGISLATIVE CONFERENCE

One of the oldest churches in the State, the Unitarian Church of Groton, will be the meeting place for the 11th district conference, Friday afternoon, January 10, at 2:15.

Mrs. George H. Sawyer, district director, will preside. Mrs. Harrison E. Lewis, president of the Groton Women's Club, the hostess of the conference, will welcome the women of the district. A group of songs by Mrs. Carl B. Ames, soprano, accompanied by Twining Lyons, will precede the legislative program, which will be in charge of Mrs. Fred L. Pigeon, State chairman of legislation.

Speakers will present the following: revision of present book law, Massachusetts State forestry bill, education bill, a bill to regulate over-night camps and tourist lodging houses, and commission to study laws relating to children. The hostess club will serve tea after the program.

Highlights of Mode for Well Dressed Young Misses

ARMS are important this season to the most peace-loving young woman, for sleeves are the center of attention in many of the newest frocks.

The length of the sleeve, for instance, is one new problem. Sleeves may terminate just above the elbow, a quaint style that is very smart. They may wear trailing cuffs that fall in a flare below the elbow. Frequently they are jeweled. And long sleeves are either very fitted or wear huge puffs and floating draperies.

The demurely youthful frock illustrated is adapted from Patou's very new rendering of the 1830 silhouette, and since "Peach is Preferred" for spring, is shown in that color, as well as in green.

The bodice is moulded to the figure, ending in a deep point, and topped by a dainty lingerie collar; the skirt has circular inserts, and dips on each side. The sleeves are the high note, dramatized by full puffs, caught by shirrings to form low shoulder line, before again becoming conventionally tight to the wrist.

PEACH is exceedingly smart for spring, and becoming to almost everyone. It is shown in tweed for spring coats and suits, for afternoon dresses, and for evening wear it is the smartest of the pastel colors. There must always be something to make this matter of fashions exciting.

The latest news that brings color into our lives is that of the accenting shades that will make our spring ensembles interesting. Shades of henna and red that have hitherto been allowed to flare forth only in the autumn will brighten the spring fashion horizon.

Emerald green, sapphire blue, and brown are other vibrant colors that will be best displayed with the white and pastels of spring and summer frocks.

THERE is no smarter beginning to a new spring wardrobe than a suit—this season more than ever; while capes are flaunting their extravagant lines on frocks and coats, and topping the new jackets.

The little suit illustrated is very young and chic, and since black and white is ultra-smart, it is shown in that combination, as well as in brown and beige. It is of fine wool, with inserted skirt sections, tiny tucks forming nipped-in waist line, and attractive little shoulder cape, well fitted through small tucks at waistline.

The blouse can be worn over the skirt, or tucked-in, is sleeveless, and of horizontally striped silk.

The hat is of corded bengaline silk, worn off the face, and made interesting by a coronet flange, ending in small cartridge pleats on each side. The costume is completed by matching pumps and bag of antelope leather, and suede gauntlet gloves.

Both of these costumes are made doubly attractive by being reasonably priced.

Band of Ribbing Is New Clever Detail

FASHION is going for yarns. Knitted ensembles appear more and more frequently in the mode. And they are by no means limited to unadorned styles. Flares, pleats, inverted tucks give an air of smartness to many of the styles. Combinations of a variety of knitted patterns are to be found in many of the suits. Knit frabics and fine jerseys are frequently used together.

One clever new detail that is being adopted by knitwear is the band of ribbing that finishes the higher waistline. Short sweaters wear this band and frequently the skirt is finished with ribbing at the top—which gives the effect of a short jumper to the sweaters that are worn with it.

Suit, Hat, Bag in Snappy Ensemble

WHETHER the ensemble could extend its tents further than it has in matters of matching hat and frock, gloves and hose, etcetera, would be doubtful if we had not recently seen a perfect example of ensemble that included suit, hat and bag.

All three pieces were made of a diagonal tweed in deep blue and gray. The suit with high-length jacket, bore a collar of gray fox. The hat which had a narrow brim, made effective use of the diagonal lines of the tweed. The underarm bag took the form of a rather large envelope.

BACK 'AFFINITY' EARLE, SUED FOR $180,000

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 4 (AP)—Depositions of Ayvind Alverson Earle, 13-year-old son of Ferdinand Pinney Earle, and Louis A. Dautricourt, friend of the artist, were filed in Superior Court in support of Earle's answer to the $180,000 breach of promise suit brought against him by Dolores Salazar, Spanish dancer.

Earle's son corroborated his father's assertion that Miss Salazar accompanied him on a trip through Mexico, Cuba and to Paris.

Ayvind said he was with his father and Miss Salazar and that she left them in a Paris hotel.

In the depositions the boy was asked "Who was this person you call Dolores?"

"Dolores Salazar, the person my father wanted to marry," was the reply.

The artist, who is known as "Affinity" Earle, has admitted he intended to marry Miss Salazar but denied he ever proposed to her. Earle at present is in Paris, where his married Denise Loucin, his fourth wife, two years ago this month.

Dautricourt said in his deposition that Earle had introduced Miss Salazar to him in France as "a young lady he intended to marry."

"His attitude was that of a man deeply in love," Dautricourt also said.

SEEK TO RAISE FILM PLANES IN AIR TRAGEDY

Santa Monica, Cal., Jan. 4 (AP)—Efforts to raise the wreckage of two motion picture camera planes believed to hold the bodies of seven of the ten men killed in a midair collision, were to be resumed today in the 218 feet of water off Point San Vicente.

The trawler Salt had its grappling hook fastened in the wreckage, while coast guard, naval and privately owned vessels were to aid in attempts to raise the planes to the surface.

The wreckage was discovered by the barge tender Daisy M., of Redondo Beach, and the speedboat Diana, from Venice, which were dragging the Pacific ocean bottom two miles offshore.

Navy airplanes flew over the scene of the disaster and nearer shore a huge fleet of small craft criss-crossed with dragging hooks.

The Daisy M., first struck the wreckage and signalled to the other craft after her hook had been hauled in and was found to show traces of red paint, the color of the airplanes. Later an airplane wheel and strut were raised. The planes, which fell 3500 feet in flames were found 100 feet apart on the ocean bottom.

They are believed to contain the bodies of Kenneth Hawks, film director; Ross Clark and Hallock Rouse, pilots; George Eastman, Otis Jordan, Henry Johannes and Tom Harris, members of the Fox Film corporation's mechanical staff. The bodies of Max Gold, assistant director; Ben Frankel, and Conrad Wells, cameramen, were recovered soon after the tragedy.

SEEK GUNMAN IN GIRL ATTACK

Cleveland, Jan. 4 (AP)—A gunman believed by police to have been responsible for attacks and robberies of five women during the last month was the object of a systematic search today.

Miss Janet Blood, 16, high school student, was shot and seriously wounded by a man and robbed of $6. Two hours later Mrs. Mae Simpson, 19, was robbed of her coat and money and attacked. Although the two women live on opposite sides of the city they gave identical descriptions of a young man who is believed to have shot Beatrice Gallagher, 23, a maid, last December 23 and Mrs. Mary Pshock, 20, three days later, and to have attacked another woman December 5.

Miss Blood was in a critical condition today. She told police she was on her way to a home where she cares for children after school hours, when the gunman grabbed her and demanded her money. When she said she had none he fired, went through her purse as she collapsed in the snow, and fled.

2 Plead Not Guilty in Attack on Doctor

Newport, R. I., Jan. 4—Alderman James P. Cozzens of this city and Harold Shefters of Providence pleaded not guilty before Judge Max Levy to charges of assault and conspiracy to commit assault on Dr. Maurice J. Butler, Dec. 16.

Eugene Spinney, who paid a fine of $125 and costs two weeks ago on a charge of assaulting Dr. Butler, pleaded not guilty to a charge of conspiracy. All three were held for a hearing Jan. 10.

Workmen Unhurt in Gas Meter Explosion

Several workmen had a narrow escape today when a gas meter exploded in the steel shops of the Boston Elevated Railway Co. in Alford st., Charlestown. Two windows were blown out.

The alarm was sounded, but the firemen had nothing to do when they arrived. Damage was estimated at $50.

Insurgent Statue in Poland Bombed

Warsaw, Poland, Jan. 4 (AP)—A monument to Polish insurgents, erected after 1920 in Katowice, was partly destroyed in an explosion today.

The authorities said they believed the explosion was engineered by an intransigeant German element dissatisfied with the partition of Silesia between Poland and Germany.

Radicalism

Mr. F. G. R. Gordon of Haverhill, a well-known knight of conservatism a debater and pamphleteer, who at one time received highest praise from the late Henry Cabot Lodge, will appear at Franklin Union Hall tomorrow evening and give his opinion of "Radicalism and America." The management of the Catholic Truth Guild in its customary generous spirit has invited the leading Socialists to attend the Common Cause Forum and take part in the question period and in the discussion. The public is cordially invited. Franklin Hall, Berkeley and Appleton sts.

Community Church Celebrates 10th Year

Tomorrow morning at Symphony hall the Community Church will hold services for its 10th birthday. The Rev. John Haynes Holmes, one of the founders, will preach the sermon and take for his topic "Psychology and Ethics: Is There a Conflict Between Them?"

The church began in 1920 in Steinert hall on Boylston st., and after four years was forced into larger quarters at the Copley Theater. In two years the church is again moved, and for the last three years has held its services in Symphony hall, with a seating capacity of 2300. Prof. Clarence Skinner of Tufts College has been president from the beginning, and Mrs. Gertrude Winslow, secretary. The success of this church is largely credited to these devoted officials.

A banquet celebrating the 10th anniversary will be held tonight at the Twentieth Century Club. Prof. Skinner will be in the chair and Harold Shefters of Providence, Mrs. Holmes and others on different phases of the work of the church.

"Growing Up," Title for Rev. T. R. Ludlow

The Rev. Theodore R. Ludlow, D. D., secretary for adult education under the National Council of the Episcopal Church, will be the speaker at a preliminary conference on "Adult Education in the Parish," to be held in the Diocesan House, 1 Joy st., on Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. Dr. Ludlow will give two addresses; "Growing Up"—a discussion of objectives and methods for adult education in the parish; "Finding and Training Leaders in the Parish." The Rev. William M. Bradner, executive secretary of the diocesan department of religious education, will lead the resulting discussion after each of the two addresses.

New Plans for Youth at Mt. Vernon Church

An entirely new schedule has been adopted at the Mt. Vernon Church, 6 Massachusetts Ave., by the Young People's Society. This group will divide up into three divisions, according to the special interest of the members. Each division will set to work to study for two months either, "Marriage and the New Morality," or "What Is Our Thought of Jesus Today," or "What or Where Is God?" On Sunday the entire society will meet together for a social hour to be followed by discussions and a lecture. The pastor, Dr. Sidney Lovett, will conduct the division studying "Marriage and the New Morality."

EXCHANGE SUNDAY

Some 15 of the towns within Greater Boston have already definitely agreed to follow the annual custom started several years ago by the Greater Boston Federation of Churches of not a Union but a denominational Pulpit Exchange Sunday. This exchange takes place on the third Sunday in January, the 19th. Other towns will probably make the pulpit exchanges also.

COPLEY METHODIST

Dr. William L. Sidger, in telling of his coming series of sermons on Boston's great preachers, declared: "There is no other city in the country where there are so many statues to clergymen. I think Boston unique in this regard, and I shall begin this new year with a series of sermons on such men and saints as Phillips Brooks and Dr. Edward Everett Hale." Tomorrow morning Dr. Sidger will talk on "Phillips Brooks—Poet Preacher."

ELABORATE PLANS FOR HOLY NAME

Next Sunday, January 12, throughout the Boston Catholic Diocese there will be special devotions to the Holy Name. The day will be observed also among Catholics in all countries. The observance was started and promoted by Cardinal O'Connell who established the Society of The Holy Name of Jesus shortly after he succeeded to the See of Boston. The day has grown in importance every year since. In explanation, the Pilot editor writes:

"The Society of the Holy Name of Jesus is founded especially for the men of the Diocese and its purpose is twofold: first of all, to honor the Sacred Name of the Saviour of Mankind by regular attendance at Mass and Holy Communion. The primary object of the Holy Name Society aims to make the Catholic man what he should be at his very best. The second object of the Holy Name Society is to prevent blasphemy and all manner of unclean speech.

"The feast day will be observed in this diocese in the morning by general communion for all the men in their respective parish churches. In the afternoon and evening neighboring parishes will unite in convenient centers to hold union vesper services.

"At these union services there will be appropriate sermons on the significence of the feast day and on the aims of the Holy Name Society. New members will be received and old members will renew their pledge to honor the name of Jesus in their lives. About sixty centers have been arranged for these union services. A special feature of the Holy Name services will be the congregational singing of the Hymn to His Holy Name, written especially for this society by His Eminence, the Cardinal.

Satisfaction Over Choice of Pacelli

Word that comes from Rome indicates general approval of Cardinal Pacelli as successor to the retiring Cardinal Gasparri, who is 77 years old. The new Papal Secretary has already been put in touch with current matters of the Holy See, and will soon be settled in the secretarial apartments which are directly over those just as Cardinal Gasparri has allowed them to remain for 16 years.

400 Hours of Service by Youth Fellowship

Tomorrow afternoon at 5:30 the Young People's Fellowship of Trinity Church will hold its annual election of officers. There will also be reports made by secretaries of departments engaged in social and religious service. Records show that the young people have been assisting with club work at various settlement houses and also have given valuable help to the work of the American Red Cross.

In the morning the pastor, the Rev. Henry K. Sherrill, will hold a communion service. The new assistant, the Rev. Mr. Rice will address the church school, and in the evening the Rev. Dr. Gardner will preach.

Prohibition—Pro and Con—Is Topic

All Universalist ministers are urgently asked to attend the Ministerial Association Monday morning at the Church of the Redemption on Ipswich st.

The secretary, the Rev. Erlo Allen Ayer, says to his brethren: "A red-hot subject will be before the ministers' meeting and you ought to be present. The topic is: 'Prohibition: a Symposium.' The chief advocate of the so-called 'wets' in Boston, Mr. Julian Codman, will present his point of view. He will be followed by Dr. Harold Marshall and Dr. Van Schaick, editor of the Christian Leader. Mr. Codman is a distinguished barrister and an expert on the Constitution."

Not a "Breath" in a Room Full

Dr. E. J. Helms, superintendent of Morgan Memorial, states that for the first time in his 35 years as director not a single liquor was detected on any of the men who were given dinner during the holidays at the Fred H. Seavey Settlement. Not a single intoxicated man applied for admission at this time as has so frequently been the case on other holidays.

Tremont Methodist to Observe Prayer Week

Rev. Charles E. Carroll will preach tomorrow on "The Place of Prayer in the New Year." Holy communion will be celebrated and new members taken into the church. In the evening the minister will preach on "Starting the New Year Right." The vested choir will render appropriate music at both services.

TERCENTENARY STARTS IN HUB CHURCHES

Twenty-seven Greater Boston churches and others scattered about Massachusetts have signified their intentions of bringing before their congregations in some form or other facts connected with the tercentenary of the Massachusetts Bay Colony.

Chief among these is the Second Church, Dorchester, where Dr. Vaughan Dabney, president of the Massachusetts Federation of Churches, has invited to his pulpit the Rev. E. Tallmadge Root, executive secretary of the federation, to preach the tercentenary sermon tomorrow evening. Dr. Root's subject will be "The New Worlds of 1630 and 1930."

In order to make the contrast between the two dates more vivid Dr. Dabney will place upon the pulpit an hourglass, dropping its sands just as it did for the first Dorchester settlers 300 years ago following the arrival in 1630 of the good ship Mary and John.

A memorial service will be used by Dr. Root, which has been prepared by Dr. H. H. Saunderson for the use of all Massachusetts churches desiring to commemorate 1630.

Dr. Saunderson will assist in this service and will follow his own arrangement, reading passages and giving out the hymns, some of which were written by Isaac Watts and others taken from the Scottish Psalter. Quotations will be read from John Robinson and from John Endicott.

Dr. Dabney, who is chairman of the Tercentenary committee of the churches, will preside and read the prayers. A senior vested choir will assist with the music. There are appropriate decorations including a display of national flags.

The Second Church, in which the service is to be held, is the oldest Congregational church in Boston in which meetings have been held uninterruptedly. It is just 125 years old this year.

Bishop Slattery to Institute Rector

On Monday, Epiphany, January 6, at 8 p. m., Bishop Slattery will institute the Rev. Elmer Nelson Owen as rector of All Saints' Church, Belmont. Mr. Owen was formerly the rector of St. Paul's Church, Des Moines, Ia., and he comes to Belmont as successor to the Rev. Percy T. Edrop, who now dean of Christ Church Cathedral, Springfield.

Evening Classes Open James Street School

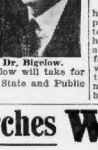
The evening classes conducted by the Young Men's Catholic Association will reopen for the second term on next Monday. Those in charge say the enrollment is "very large." All classes are held in the Boston College high school on James st., South End.

300 Years Old and Still Going

Mr. Edward A. Huebeuer, the Dorchester antiquarian and historian, is here seen telling the Rev. Vaughan Dabney about the hour glass which arrived in Dorchester just 300 years ago in the "Mary and John" that also brought the first Dorchester settlers. It is quite possible this timekeeper once recorded sermons as long as two and three hours. Dr. Dabney will place it on his pulpit at the Second Church, Codman sq., tomorrow evening, to tell off the minutes as Dr. E. Tallmadge Root gives a half-hour tercentenary sermon.

"Public Health," Dr. Bigelow's Subject

Dr. George H. Bigelow, head of the State Board of Health, will be the first lecturer in the new year to address the Tuesday evening class in social work at the Boston College high school on James st. This will be the 12th lecture in a course conducted by the Catholic Charitable Bureau and attended by several hundred social and charitable workers of Boston. Dr. Bigelow will take for his subject, "The State and Public Health."



Dr. Bigelow.

"Great Words of Christ," by Dr. Brooks

The Dudley St. Baptist Church announces a new lease of life with the coming of Dr. Brooks. A record congregation is expected at both services tomorrow, when the minister, Rev. Arthur T. Brooks, will give two important messages. In the morning he will preach on "Real Happiness in 1930," and in the evening on "Four Great Words of Christ." There will be special musical programs both morning and evening.

Federal Council Calls for Week of Prayer

The Federal Council of Churches has set aside this coming week for prayer. The dates include Jan. 7 to 11. Churches and individuals, homes and institutions, are all asked to set aside times each day for contemplation and silence as well as expressed prayer. This, the church body believes, is the most wholesome way in which to begin a new year.

Old South Forum Has English M. P.

Hon. Mary Agnes Hamilton, English M. P., will speak tomorrow afternoon at the Old South Forum on Washington st., on "English Women and the Labor Party." She is known both in England and in America as a co-editor with Sir Philip Gibbs of the English Review of Reviews. She has written a life of Ramsay MacDonald, and is author of "Folly's Handbook," and "Three Against Fate."

STAGE AND SCREEN

REPERTORY TORCH IS

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

DESPITE the quieting news which trickles through the drama's main artery of communication, The Henry Jewett Players, legally transcribed as the Repertory Theatre, found the unhappy task of being only tax-exempt institution in the region, will no longer strut the stage of the frig little abode of the arts on upper Huntington ave. The spoken drama in that precinct is dead; tonight the obsequies—then the final curtain on a time-worn play called "The Water Babies."

WITH no particular ceremony, Mr. Jewett now surrenders the local field of repertory to his ancient adversary, Mr. E. E. Clive, of the more affluent Copley. To the disinterested spectator this rival campaign is terminated exactly as laid down in the book of rules—the survival of the fittest. But to more astute doctors of the drama the result could have been safely predicted 12 months ago. Mr. Clive, it was clear, produced plays the public would buy; Mr. Jewett did not. There still will be cultural operations at the Repertory, however, this time in the form of the silent cinema, called back from the past and fixed up for Mr. Jewett's new list of customers.

Nicholas Young

PROBABLY no crusade for the uplift of art has had more encouragement than that bestowed upon the associated Jewetts. It was made a civic enterprise; by it the theater was to be delivered from sordid interests and saved from its own errors. As it turns out, the now almost archaic voiceless picture becomes the eagerly sought haven of refuge in time of storm.

BIG things were expected of the Repertory Theater. Pretentious plans were set up for the resurrection of a declining art; promises were made which, if possible of fulfillment, would have made the Repertory the outstanding center of dramatic expression in the country. There were sponsors, subscribers and trustees; men and women worked for the success of the crusade for the sheer love of it. Much of the service was unsalaried.

BY some good fortune, unquestionably brought about by the influence of the mighty, the entire project, real estate and what went with it, was exempted from tax assessment. In the meantime, the Messrs. Shubert, A. L. Erlanger and other owners of theater property engaged in identical operations, were socked to the limit in local taxes. Even the Repertory's immediate and now triumphant rival, Mr. E. E. Clive, could discover no tax rebate when his monthly rental check was demanded by the Shuberts, his landlords.

SYMPHONY IN MODERNIST PROGRAM

By MOSES SMITH

OF the four pieces that make up the program of this week's concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra not a single piece was completed before 1925. This speaks eloquently for the manner in which Serge Koussevitzky has transformed these concerts from a museum of archaic exhibits to an almost experimental workshop of contemporary art.

Of principal interest for us, even though there was a novelty on the program, was the repetition of Arnold Bax' Symphony in two keys, the world premier of which was in the same hall three weeks ago. A second hearing strengthened our original impression that here is a work that stands out mountainously among the low flat hills of current modernist music.

It is true that the score sounded even more "derivative" than it did then; that there were reminiscences of such widely contrasted influences as Cesar Franck, who seems to have dominated the form in which this Symphony is cast, Rimsky-Korsakov and even Puccini in the first movement, Grieg in the second, Ravel and notably Borodine in the third. But it remains that Bax speaks from the heart as well as head in a speech that all men can understand, and not in the snobbish-lingo of his contemporaries. Moreover, he has beautiful thoughts, to which to give utterance, not merely wise-cracks.

Charles Martin Loeffler's "Canticum Fratris Solis," a hymn for voice and orchestra, after St. Francis of Assisi, was played here for the first time, Hailed as a masterpiece elsewhere, it was a partial disappointment to us. Allowance should be made for the late arrival here of Mme. Frijsh, who was detained by an overdue ocean liner. The audience was remarkably enthusiastic, recalling conductor, soloist and the composer many times.

The performance of Ravel's ripple of applause compared with the storm it evoked when it was heard here first a month ago. Walton's dashing brilliant overture, "Portsmouth Point," began the program.

HANDLING CHOCOLATE JUST LIKE SOFT CANDY TO LEWIS

UNSUNG, though far from unhonored, yet rarely, if ever, exposed to the public, is the company manager. Like the engineer in the innards of the ocean liner, he who supervises the operations that provide the mighty power which gives his ship life, the theater company manager lets his star and company members receive all the plaudits. He is content to be at the head of the machinery.

Murray Lewis

The Immermans, Connie and George, owners of the inn bearing the first's name, responded to Mr. Lewis' enthusiasm and organized the company. The manager had his work cut out for him to mould a show that would click and not belie its title. There were some discouraging moments, a time when failure loomed, but faith won out and "Hot Chocolates" settled down to prosperity and such fame that the title became a byword among theatergoers.

But after the show had won favor there was call for even more managerial ability in Mr. Lewis, for it required the holding together of a company of more than a hundred people and keeping them keyed up to the highest perfection in performance night after night through those many months. This, in the argot of the theater, is a "speed show." There can be no letting down of tension, no slurring of numbers. Colored entertainers are no whit less temperamental than whites. Diplomacy of a high order and particular variety was necessary. A firm rule and kindness had to be combined.

The resulting success, the keeping together of the original company and the harmony prevailing back stage, is the best tribute to Mr. Lewis' ability. He could write a very interesting book on his experiences with this one show. But a theater company manager is not expected to receive publicity. It isn't done. And that is the reason why this article must end here. Its purpose was to get a theater company manager's name into the paper just once.

Rachmaninoff Recital

A notable recital is announced for the last Sunday in January when Sergei Rachmaninoff will appear.

GUILD FAVORS THE PLAYS OF SHAW

WITH the production of a Shaw play, "Major Barbara," at the Hollis, the Theater Guild gives further proof of sticking to its announced intention of producing all of Shaw, everything he has written in the full-length dramatic line, from beginning to end.

"Major Barbara" is the 11th Shaw play to be staged by the Theater Guild in its 10 years of existence. Out of the approximately 7000 performances that it has given in that time, nearly 1800 have been devoted to Shaw. Clearly he is the Guild's favorite playwright.

Here is the Guild's Shaw record, with the number of times each of the plays has been performed:

IN GOTHAM
"Heartbreak House"	129
"Back to Methuselah"	75
"The Devil's Disciple"	198
"Saint Joan"	241
"Caesar and Cleopatra"	129
"Arms and the Man"	124
"Androcles and the Lion" and "Man and Destiny"	86
"The Doctor's Dilemma"	130
"Major Barbara"	104
Total	1276
ON TOUR
"Pygmalion"	82
"Saint Joan"	200
"Arms and the Man"	109
"The Doctor's Dilemma"	103
Grand total	1770

"Pygmalion," one of Bernard Shaw's most popular comedies, will be presented at the Hollis by the Theater Guild the weeks of January 13 and 20 as the fifth and last of the Theater Guild's attractions of the current subscription season.

This play has among its characters one of the most fascinating in the entire Shavian list, a Mr. Alfred Doolittle, dustman by profession and a borrower, who in generally successful because of his pungent and homely items of philosophy with which he accompanies his "touches." "Pygmalion" does not contain the important theories which are to be found in some of Mr. Shaw's more serious plays but centers itself with considerable directness on the narrative of the teacher and his engagingly erratic pupil.

DRESSES LIKE GIRL OF 1905

THE original Arkansas Travelers, the Weaver Brothers, "two-man jazz band," are back in vaudeville, bringing another member of the family, captured, with some difficulty, during last summer's vacation time, and are now at the Keith-Albee.

The latest addition to the act, is sister Elviry, who clings to a nice hard pompadour, topped with a stiff bow, shirtwaist dress long and full; in fact she achieves a pretty accurate reproduction of sweet girl graduate of about 1905.

Only sweetness is really not part of the make-up. Elviry has what might be known as an aggressive, not to say belligerent attitude. She has a mind of her own and she's not the least bit timid about spreading it. She is a superb example of the firm and upright, stern and vigorous, natural woman of the Ozarks where she hails from. Elviry is determined not to let these city folks put anything over on her.

The New Plays

MAJESTIC—Fritzi Scheff in "Mlle. Modiste." A revival. Music by Victor Herbert; book and lyrics by Henry Blossom. In the supporting cast are Detmar Poppen, Eric Titus, Alan Brooks, Robert Rhodes Jack Byrne, Flavia Arcaro, Edith Artley, Florence Gasella, Katherine Redmond and Sarah Edward. Dances by Albertina Rasch Ballet. Staged by Milton Aborn.

SHUBERT — "Pleasure Bound," a revue. Music by Muriel Pollock; book by Harold Atteridge; lyrics by Max and Nathaniel Lief and Mr. Atteridge. Included in the cast are Phil Baker, Alice Stanley, Shaw and Lee, Rosita Moreno, June O'Dea, Chick Chandler and a company of Jack Donahue-John Boyle dancing girls. Book staged by Lew Morton; dances arranged by John Boyle. Produced by the Shuberts.

THINGS HUM AT WAVING OF BATON

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

TO judge by his success as a merry-maker and the applause he always gets, Charlie Frank is a fixture in the role of master of ceremonies. A good many think that when better fun is at hand, Mr. Frank will be on the job to supervise the show. Just at present he is bringing home the bacon for Al Donovan, at the Scollay Square Olympia.

IF Manager Donovan had his way, Herr Conductor Frank of the Scollay orchestra will be installed as perpetual handler of the baton, also for the special Thursday night merry-making program. It was the former's managerial sense that first saw stage directorial genius in the Scollay music master. That was months ago. Now Mr. Frank's Thursday Nights are an institution and they have had to make it two shows where there used to be one. This latter move was a concession to the overflow throngs that came when it was a single, starting at 8 p. m. Now the specials begin at 5 p. m., and last, with a short intermission, until 11, or after that hour. Mr. Frank is a veteran of the Boston theaters; he began his orchestra career here more than 30 years ago.

Charles Frank.

ORDINARILY Mr. Frank presides in the orchestra pit at the Scollay but on Thursdays he ascends to the stage, and not only takes care of his band, but has under his wing all the vaudeville acts and the general dispensing of mirth. There are always special features, in addition to the films and the stage talent. Merriment is the watchword, and it starts with Mr. Frank's swinging baton.

FOR its motion picture feature this week the Scollay is offering Lupe Velez in "Stiger Rose"; simultaneously the photoplay is being screened at the Fenway, in the Back Bay. The fiery Mexican lass has a role which permits free play to her broken English. Not so long ago she was being "read out" of filmdom, it being said that there was no place for her now that the talkies are the rage. But the self-willed and impetuous girl refused to surrender. Instead she hunted up a good job, and began seriously to study English. Meanwhile, she is to have roles which are lenient on her lingo.

OF course, there has to be a theme song, and it is the senorita that sings it. The story deals with primitive life in the Canadian wilds; there is a red-blooded man of the Northwest Mounted, Monte Blue's role. He is in love with the heroine, but alas, she loves another—none other than that favorite of the flappers, Grant Withers. Those who yearn for the wide open spaces will find strong appeal here, especially in the wondrous photography of the Dominion outdoors land.

Studied to Be an Orator

CONRAD NAGEL, seen at the Publix Metropolitan in "The Sacred Flame," has, since the advent of the talking pictures, strengthened his position as a favored screen artist. He has applied himself to the work of perfecting his art.

Conrad Nagel was born in Iowa in the town of Keokuk. His father was a pianist and composer. Conrad studied at Highland Park College, where he received his degree of bachelor of oratory. Taking to the stage, he joined a stock company in Des Moines. After trying vaudeville for a season, he was engaged for a prominent part in "The Nature Law."

Like so many stage folk of the time, he turned to pictures, his first film work being under William A. Brady in the Paramount production of Louisa M. Alcott's "Little Women." Mr. Nagel is married to Ruth Helms, and they have a beautiful home at 715 North Palm Drive, Beverly Hills, California. His reading is devoted largely to history and biographies. Swimming and motoring are his favorite pastimes and he likes to drive his own car. His greatest ambition is to play "Hamlet" on the stage.

MARIA OLSZEWSKA
MME. OLSZEWSKA is one of the Chicago Civic Opera stars coming to "Rose" in February.

Plays Remaining

"Major Barbara" at the Hollis. (Second week.) The acid humors of Bernard Shaw interpreted by willing Theater Guild actors. The last week.

Connie's "Hot Chocolates" at the Tremont. (Third week.) High speed revue, showing the frivolities of night life in Harlem.

"The House of Fear" at the Plymouth. (Third week.) Chiefly an affair with ghosts, trick doors and disappearing bodies.

* * *

"The Middle Watch" at the Copley. (Third week.) What you may expect when women take liberties with the British navy.

CAREWE PASSES UP CONTRACT AND "THE SPOILERS"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

Copyright, 1930, Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4—Certainly the wise boy who said "There's many a slip between the cup and the lip" must have known about movie contracts. Here was Edwin Carewe, pen in hand, ready to sign as production manager for Pathe. Here also was Director Carewe with a manuscript of "The Spoilers" in his other hand which Joseph Kennedy and he were to produce for Pathe.

Then came a disagreement with one of the Kennedy officials and Mr. Carewe said, "There will be no signing today." Meanwhile, Paramount stepped in and now "The Spoilers" will be made for them with a Paramount selected cast. Of course, Mr. Carewe had his say. But he couldn't have objected to George Bancroft as the male lead, could he? Betty Compson plays Cherry Malotte and Fay Wray will be Helen. This, I believe, is the first big change of plans for the New Year. I thank you. Oh, yes, "The Silver Horde," another Rex Beach novel, will also be filmed by Mr. Carewe.

THERE is a Santa Claus and the age of miracles is not past. Frances Dade, a little girl who lives in New York and has been playing extra parts, walked into the office of Samuel Goldwyn in New York. Arthur Hornblow happened to be there at the moment and was so impressed with the 18-year-old child's personality that he had a test made of her. The test was air-mailed to Hollywood and after Harry D'Arrast, director of "Raffles," and Arthur Hornblow took a look at it they decided little Miss Dade was a good bet. She reaches here shortly to play a part in "Raffles" and if she comes up to expectations a great future is in store for her.

I JUST refuse to get excited over new contracts. We have had everybody of importance on the stage out here. But I admit when I heard that Hazard Short who directed the famous "Music Box Revues" in New York had been signed by the Fox Company, I was greatly interested. Mr. Short is out here to direct a special production with a continental flavor in which all the overseas personalities will have important roles. Isn't that interesting? I suppose Paul Muni will represent the Jewish race, Victor McLaglen the English and Fifi Dorsay, the French. Fifi is to have one of the leading roles and well she might, for that little gal is one of the most promising of the foreign actresses.

WE have in our midst an English matinee idol. His name is Paul Cavanagh and he was brought to this country by Gilbert Miller, New York stage impresario. Metro Goldwyn-Mayer has borrowed the magnetic Mr. Cavanagh for the part in "The Circle" that John Halliday created on the stage. We are advised to watch the gentleman's technique. He is, in plain language, the type that women admire and furthermore he knows his dialogue.

MILTON SILLS is taking his time about making a picture. He was in conference with Jack Warner this week but he does not want to make a picture until he has the right story. He thinks it is important to come back with something like "The Barker." Milton is restored to health and is himself again. The Sills have had a particularly trying time this last year. Doris Kenyon lost her beloved brother and Milton has been too ill to work for well over a year. But 1930 looms brighter for them and within a week or so I think there will be an announcement regarding the next picture of Mr. Sills.

LILY DAMITA sends back word to sell her car and her personal belongings. Maybe Lily feels with the success of her New York stage that her place is on Broadway. Everyone who comes back from the Big Town brings glowing reports of Lily's personality in "Sons of Guns." We miss Lily with her gaiety and engaging way of saying "How are you?" Sam Goldwyn says that he is going to put her in a picture but with that accent of Lily's she will probably be much better on the stage.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Zasu Pitts winning a 55 bet on the Southern California-Pittsburgh game. Also other film folk who were true to California, Pauline Starke, wearing a smart green sport suit, arriving at the game in time to see California's first touchdown. Norma Talmadge receiving many compliments when she appeared at dinner at the Buster Keaton house in white, wearing her emeralds. Bess Meredyth explaining the intricacies of the football game to her young son, aided by Michael Curtis. Ben Lyon arriving at the Buster Keaton party after his performance in "The Boomerang." A bus load of film folk cheering their motorcycle cop escort when he proved his agility as an acrobat. That's all today.

'SUGAR BABIES' AT HOWARD

ANOTHER Mutual burlesque show with beauty and talent will step forth at the Old Howard on Monday. This company of funmakers is known as Harry Fields' "Sugar Babies," with the producer himself taking one of the principal roles. One of the peppiest girls is Dottie Reed. Little Patricia Kelly, Jean Gardner and Mabel Spencer, Harry C. Van, Johnny Ragland and Frank Scannell, are among the stars.

The usual vaudeville and picture bill will add to the jollity. The acts include Bob Hall; Whitey and Ford, and the Morton Boys. The pictures offer George O'Brien in "Masked Emotions," Lillian Gish and Montagu Love in "The Wind," Lupino Lane in "Summer Saps," and the Hearst News. There is a midnight show every Friday at 11:30 p. m.

JUST TOO BAD FOR DOGGIE

SOUND proof camera boxes on 8 studio sets were put to a new use during the filming of "No, No, Nanette," the musical comedy now at the Uptown and Washington Street Olympia.

Louise Fazenda used one as a kennel in which to put her nosy wire-haired terrier. The actress brought her pet on the set at the First National and Vitaphone Studios, not thinking the dog would break into a series of yips. After trying to quiet the animal so that Director Clarence Badger could "shoot" a talking scene, she put it in the cloth-lined box where it could be seen, but not heard.

STAGE AND SCREEN

PARLEZ-VOUS CUE TO WIN A SMILE

IRENE BORDONI, star of "Paris," which is now at the New B. F. Keith's, has been unable to efface traces of her French accent. She remains piquantly French. Her entire personality is distinctly and typically Gallic. In her home she speaks French to her servants, and also in the theater when members of her company can speak the language.

Irene Bordoni

When she travels she takes her entire staff of servants along. She maintains three homes. One in Gotham, just off Park ave., one on the Champs d'Paris, and one on the Riviera. She is actually a homebody and dislikes appearing publicly. She does not like to meet people. She likes a small group of friends. When New York society attempted to take her up she would have none of it, declaring she was too busy. She was not flattered by the attention.

On the other hand she is most democratic and likes a person as a person and not because of wealth or position.

She loves the theater. Her favorite reading matter is a play—something she may think will suit her own use. For fiction she prefers Anatole France, liking particularly "The Red Lily," the "Revolt of the Angles" and "Penguin Island." While she has worked in night clubs she dislikes it because of the smoke. A salary of $3000 per week was the only thing that persuaded her to appear in a night club recently.

Outdoor sports mean little to Irene Bordoni because she has not the time to enjoy them. She is a good swimmer. She likes horseback riding and swimming at a stable in France. She has two Pekinese dogs. She hates travel because she suffers from train sickness.

Her greatest hobby is clothes. She could make a fortune as a designer of gowns. She loves brilliantly colored jewels and adores ostrich costumes for stage attire. She is often described, "Irene Bordoni, death of ostriches." She has a great weakness for shoes and has two or three pairs for every costume. She dislikes extreme styles, yet she dresses with distinct individuality and sometimes with startling effect.

Elly Ney Recital

Elly Ney, German pianist, will appear in Jordan Hall on Tuesday evening, January 21, for the first time this season.

RICARDO CORTEZ

MR. CORTEZ, here pictured by Artist Charles Schmidt, goes exploring in the Antarctic as the sweetheart in "The Lost Zeppelin" at the Park. Icy cold doesn't freeze his heart.

OVER THE TOP AT YPRES

BY all rights, Ronald Colman, who will be seen at Loew's State the coming week in his second starring all-talking picture "Condemned," was cut out for the theater, yet he was trained for engineering. He is descended from the famous Colmans, father and son, who were playwrights and theatrical producers in 18th century England.

Young Colman felt the call of the stage and was doing well as a juvenile until the war broke out in 1914. A mere youngster, he enlisted in the London Scottish and served during the first and second battles of Ypres.

Invalided home in 1917, he went back on the stage and became a leading man. Henry King, looking for a leading man for Lillian Gish, saw Colman at the Henry Miller Theater and sent him to Italy to play in "The White Sister." In this picture and "Romola," which followed, he attracted much notice. Samuel Goldwyn signed him by cable to come to Hollywood. With Vilma Banky he made a sensation with "The Dark Angel" and with "Beau Geste," for which Samuel Goldwyn loaned him to Paramount, he was established as a leading man.

Irish Minstrels to Be Arlington Feature

Emmet Moore and his Irish Minstrels will open a two weeks' engagement at the Arlington Theater tomorrow evening at 8:15, and every evening at 8:15, with matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays at 2:30. The famous Irish minstrel will be seen and heard in a big screen and stage entertainment. The pictures were made in Ireland last summer, being two plays, "The Night Before the Fair," and "The Minstrel of Kerry." Mr. Moore will show the hometown scenes requested by the Irish of Boston last season when "Erin's Isle" played at the Arlington for six weeks.

Only a Ghost on Stage, but Really Beautiful

Most young ladies as good looking as Frances McHugh, who plays the phantom in "The House of Fear," laughing mystery farce at the Plymouth, would want to display their good looks instead of hiding them from the public view, but not so with Miss McHugh, who claims her ability is more important than her beauty.

Miss McHugh appears only once during the entire performance of "The House of Fear," and that is during the last act, when she floats out over the heads of the audience as the spirit of Kyranna. Miss McHugh is an expert in the art of deceiving her audience, having received her early training with the late Houdini.

FILM CALLED PIONEER IN PROPHECY

"THE LOST ZEPPELIN," Tiffany's big production now being shown at the Park, has been referred to be a prophecy, for the great Graf Zeppelin is to be sent to one of the Poles. It now is planned to send the Graf Zeppelin to the North Polar regions, but as the South Pole offers more interesting material for exploration, the Graf's trip may be toward that region, it is said.

Conway Tearle

The South Pole is a huge continent. It is believed that under the ice there are tremendous coal, oil and other mineral fields. Should this prove true, there undoubtedly will be "airship rushes" toward the Antarctic. Commander Byrd, now in the Antarctic, is barely scratching the surface and has made many valuable discoveries.

In "The Lost Zeppelin," a huge dirigible starts for the South Pole and is wrecked on an icy mountain during a tremendous storm in the Antarctic. The picture is filled with romance and thrills. It is an all-talking, Heading the cast are Conway Tearle, Virginia Valli and Ricardo Cortez.

'LAFFIN THRU' AT GAYETY

AT THE Gayety next week the big show is "Laffin Thru."

Teresina is the chief feminine star of "Laffin Thru" and her interpretation of modern solo dances is a feature. Co-starred with her will be Joe Van, Les Dunn, Arthur Gilson, Don Proctor, Vinnie Phillips, Althea Conley and Anna Foley are others in the cast.

The show consists of a combination of wise-cracking laugh episodes, with singing and dancing numbers sprinkled throughout. Several farcical scenes are included and the scenery and costuming is reported to be the last word in bizarre coloring and pleasing novelties. Globe's Gayety jazz orchestra will offer novelties.

Musical Clubs in Annual Concert

With Rulon Robison, lyric tenor, as guest artist, the combined musical clubs of the day division of Northeastern University will hold their annual mid-winter concert and dance, Friday evening, January 17, in the main auditorium, Boston City Club.

The new director of music, Benjamin F White, has arranged a program that includes more than a score of selections featuring the guest artist, the concert orchestra, glee club, banjo club, band, saxophone band and dance orchestra, known as the Bacchanallans.

Hoover Will Work in 'Washed' Atmosphere

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP)—President Hoover may work in an atmosphere mechanically "washed," neither too hot nor too cold, but pleasant and healthful, after he goes back to his rehabilitated executive offices.

The practicability and the cost of installing a system of modern air-conditioning equipment are being investigated by Col. U. S. Grant, 3rd, director of public buildings and parks.

President Hoover has been informed of the project and apparently he has raised no objection to it.

The air-conditioning system, if installed, would do for the atmosphere in the executive offices what a similar apparatus has done in the halls of Congress, where one was installed last year.

10 RESCUED, TWO FIREMEN HURT IN REVERE FIRE

Coal Gas Blast Injures Two on Gale-Swept Ship

Air Romance, Better Than "Chickie"

CHAPTER 23

BY the light of the street lamp, the reporter read!

"I owe your paper a debt, which I now pay. I'm giving this 'story' exclusively to you Guess it's a good enough 'scoop.' You're welcome and thanks.

"The large key opens the front door. The house is empty. Better not switch the lights. Use the flash you'll find on a chair just inside the door.

"The key with the red string leads from the hall to the garage. Go there. Then follow the directions attached to key No 3. You'll come upon the whole story. Good luck!"

The three men entered the dark, narrow hall of a very small cottage. The floors were without carpet; the furniture, which they could dimly see, was of the shabbiest. At the end of the hall, a door led down steps to a garage.

Entered here, they read by the flashlight directions attached to key No. 3. Printed in minute, precise letters:

"This key opens a secret board in the back wall of the garage. To save your time, I've marked the keyhole with an arrow. It's near the corner to your right as you face the wall Open this secret door and enter the room upon which it gives."

The garage appeared roughly plastered. There was no sign of a door, but several huge cracks streaked the back wall. One of these was the break where the door swung.

They found the keyhole. The door went inward on a dark cavity whose floor level was several feet above that of a garage. At first they saw only the rough outlines of a cellar-like space. It was about six feet high, 10 feet wide and five feet deep. In the far corner was a crude bed. This was partly obscured by the table and bench which stood in front of it.

They took the high step and turned the flashlight full on the bed and the shocking oreasence lying there.

The body of a man with his throat cut from ear to ear, and one hand with the fingers curled trailing the floor. The head and neck lay in a dark pool of blood. the eyes stared open and two white lines like the old, bitter scars, went from the nose to the mouth. Below this, the blood trickled in a thin stream into the congulated pool. The body was still warm.

On its chest was an envelope addressed:

"To the Reporters:

"You can switch the light on the table now. But be careful. Don't disturb the secret of what I've laid there. You are looking at the kidnaper of Billy Bryce. Perhaps you recognize me. The police will. William Bryce will. He's known in his heart, all along, that I was the perpetrated this. He didn't want to think it. He knew that he'd never see his grown again—never see him living again if it was I who had him.

"So he kidded himself that I wasn't in it. But they watched me. Every minute since a week ago last Monday. I've laughed and eluded them as they shadowed this wretched house. Oh, yes, I've been at work every day! They've got NOTHING on me. And till doomsday they'd get nothing on me. They searched this house! And all the while Guy Elliott was in the room. It's funny, I guessed they'd do this that in the end I changed my plans. Because of this change, and ONLY because of this, I'm now lying here.

"You see, I thought of everything. I anticipated everything. Even that you mustn't switch the light in the front hall and give your scoop away.

"And my part of this went along without one hitch. If I could have done it alone, as originally planned, Billy Bryce would be lying here now. And lying in exactly the condition you see me—face and red across the throat. For 10 months I've lived with this vision before me. I've slept, worked and wept with the picture in mind. His kid choking to death as mine choked.

"If I could have put the deal over alone all would have gone through as perfectly as to seem mysterious—the work of a phantom. I laughed at them! But I had to call in aid. Unfortunately, I picked a blunderer.

"All that went well was my

Bill to Establish Fin. Com. in Revere

A bill to establish a Finance Commission, consisting of three residents appointed by the governor, for the city of Revere, was filed with the clerk of the House by Representative Airola of that city, on petition of John M. Macauley, also of Revere.

The commission would have authority to investigate any and all matters relating to appropriations, loans or other financial transactions by the city, and would report thereon to the mayor, the city council, the governor or the Legislature.

Priest to Preside

At the Lynn Council Chamber next Monday morning at 10 o'clock Mayor-elect J. Fred Manning takes over executive control relinquished by Mayor R. S. Bauer. Mgr. Joseph McGlinchey, pastor of St. Mary's Church, one of the most prominent priests of the archdiocese, will invoke blessing.

Three Deny Guilt in Theft of 'L' Tickets

Charged with receiving $700 worth of tickets stolen from the Bartlett st. barn of the Elevated, three conductors were arraigned in municipal court today

Carl F. Dunlap, who is also a ball commissioner; Frederick W. Remlinger and John J. Killion pleaded not guilty and their cases were continued to January 17

The police recovered 25,000 tickets in the basement of Dunlap's home in Marks st., Roxbury, they declared. Killion lives in Hall st., Jamaica Plain, and Remlinger in Engle st., Lynn.

The three were taken into custody early today by police inspectors and secret detectives employed by the Elevated and were booked at police headquarters, after being questioned as suspicious persons.

They were arrested by Inspectors Dorsey, Mulrey, Kelley and Concannon of the bureau of original investigation at police headquarters, and operatives of the Boston Elevated railway detective department

According to the police, tickets similar to those stolen when the Bartlett st. office was broken into were found in possession of Dunlap.

In the investigation of the burglary the police obtained the numbers of these tickets, and discovered that some of these tickets were in circulation in the Roxbury district.

These were traced to their source and, according to the police, led to someone who was believed to be the fence for those who forced their way into the office and stole the tickets.

As a result of information uncovered during the grilling of two of the three conductors arrested, the police began a search for six other conductors who are believed to be involved in the handling of tickets. Their arrests have been ordered.

Stresses Need of Merchant Marine

Kittery, Me., Jan. 4—"If we are to move our surplus produce to the markets of the world we have got to maintain an adequate merchant marine, a merchant marine which will compare favorably with the merchant marines of other nations," said Congressman Wallace H. White, Jr., of Lewiston, candidate for the United States Senate, to succeed Senator Arthur R. Gould, at the monthly meeting of the Piscataqua Men's Club of the Second Methodist Church tonight.

TEN SAVED IN REVERE FIRE; TWO HURT

Firemen Suffer Crushed Hands; Help Is Called From Chelsea to Fight Flames

Ten persons were rescued and two firemen injured in a spectacular fire today on Bellingham ave., Revere, that necessitated calling apparatus from Chelsea and for more than two hours threatened the district.

The blaze was confined to one dwelling house, although for a time it was thought that nearby houses would be fired by the flaming embers. Damage was estimated at $8000.

Mrs. Walter E. Ryan, ill in bed on the second floor, was carried to the street with her two children, Walter, 5 and Doris, 4. On the third floor, Mr. and Mrs. John Chaffee and their five children were carried through the smoke filled corridors to the street. The children are Warren, 9, Walter, 6, Lillian, 4, Clare, 2 and Barbara, 7 months.

Joseph Dunlear and John Caton, firemen, suffered crushed hands when an extension ladder they were raising to battle the flames issuing through the roof, slipped its cog and dropped.

The two men were taken to the offices of local physicians and later to the Chelsea Memorial hospital for treatment.

John Taylor, a taxicab driver and his passenger, Duncan McDougal, discovered the fire. Fire Captain Richard Shaughnessey and Patrolman Robert Barry were first on the scene and with Francis Nichols, resident of the first floor, effected the rescues.

The trio carried down the Chaffee family first and then Shaughnessey and Barry returned and brought out Mrs. Ryan and her two children. They were assisted by Patrolman P. J. O'Rourke. The Nichols family were not at home.

When apparatus arrived at the scene, the fire had gained such headway that Fire Commissioner Harry J. Harding and Chief Thomas J. McCarrick ordered the second alarm. Later the call was sent bringing out every man in the department and aid from the Chelsea department.

The fire started in the basement and ate its way through partitions to the roof, mushrooming out on all three floors. The house, situated on the crest of the hill, afforded the entire city an excellent view of the fire, as flames burst through the roof.

The Ryan and Chaffee family furniture and personal property was not covered by insurance. The house is owned by Mrs. Simon Dryer, who lives in the adjoining house.

WOMEN 'DRYS' THANK ALLEN

Gov. Frank G. Allen today received the thanks of a group of "dry" women for his courageous stand against repeal of the State prohibition enforcement law."

In addressing the women who voted to send thanks Mrs. George Whiting said: "Let the parents of Massachusetts make known that they stand with Governor Allen against turning the speakeasies into open saloons."

In addition, Mrs. Whiting said: "Governor Allen has taken the first stroke against the saloon. Repeal of our State prohibition enforcement act is a real step toward reining our streets with saloons. The Governor blazes a trail every parent should follow for the sake of children. From this moment let every parent go forward with Governor Allen and make war on the speakeasy as we formerly made war on the saloon."

Whistle Lands Four Youths in Court

The whistle of an alleged lookout today resulted in the arrest of four youths in Lynn, who, according to the police, have been responsible for a series of breaks.

Stanley Samarke of Wheeler st., the whistler, was captured after a chase and later James Hitt of Sumner st. and William McManus of Newhall st. were caught trying to break into a nearby store. At the Robinson-Brockway Co., in Oxford st., Paul O'Donnell of High st., was caught at gunpoint as he waited for the others to arrive to assist him in entering the plant. In Lynn court McManus was held for the juvenile session and the others held in $2500 each for the grand jury.

Seven Pass Test for Police Sergeant

The State Civil Service Commission today established an eligible list for the position of sergeant in the Peabody police department. The examination was held Nov. 6, 1929. Of the thirteen who took the test seven were found qualified in the following order: Eugene F. SSweeney, Patrick J. McHugh, Martin J. Quinlan, James F. Nelson, Louis F. McHugh and Philip F. McGinn.

The domestic help problem is solved by visiting the Kitchenette Apartments and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

Gift for Retiring Mayor

POLICE UPHELD IN ROBBERY

Police Lieut. T. A. Malone and 12 policemen of Quincy were found not guilty of negligence and inefficiency by Mayor T. J. McGrath and Chief of Police D. H. Bishop after listening to their stories in connection with the breaking and entering of the shoe store of Domnic Palma in Billings ct., Norfolk Downs. Three men who stole $92.80 escaped.

The mayor had all 13 policemen, including the lieutenant, on "the carpet" yesterday. Today he issued a statement in which he said: "From the testimony it is quite evident the police department acted promptly and efficiently in the pursuit of the men supposed to have committed this crime and, while I was disappointed that no arrests were made, I could not come to any other conclusion than that the department acted as best it could under the circumstances."

"Bloops to Gidgets" is truly spoken of Classified Want Ads—no noise, but they make a lot of stir—called Results.

Employes of Cambridge City Hall today bade farewell to Mayor Quinn, whose 12 years of service as chief executive of the city terminates Monday at 10 a. m., when Richard M. Russell is sworn into office as mayor of the city.

From the employes in general, the six-time mayor received a purse of gold, while his chief clerk, and at present city auditor, Edward A. Counihan, presented the retiring chief with a photograph which will hang in the executive chambers among those of all other past mayors of the city, and the workers of the executive office gave him a set of bookends fashioned partly from pieces of the original Washington Elm.

The entire personnel of the hall was represented by Timothy W. Good, former mayor and present superintendent of the water board and the executive staff by Walter Rose, the mayor's secretary.

Upon receipt of the gifts the mayor responded in well-chosen words and at the same time took occasion to thank those present for their faithful service to the city and their co-operation with him while he was their chief.

Each of those in the group of more than 50 then shook hands with the retiring mayor, wishing him deserved success in his new line of endeavor.

REACHES HUB AFTER HARD VOYAGE

Victims, Badly Burned, Taken to Hospital; Vessel Was Damaged in Storm

At a climax to a rough passage of nearly a month from Swansea, Wales, with coal, the steamship Monkswood reached Boston today with two members of the crew suffering from burns suffered in a coal gas explosion.

The sailors, Arrica Salerno, 24, of Malta, and Philip Bowen, 30, of Wells, Eng., went into No. 1 hatch with a lighted candle and the explosion resulted.

The explosion occurred on January 2. The men were rushed to a hospital when the steamship arrived at Grand Junction wharf, East Boston.

Shortly after leaving Swansea the ship's steering gear gave way in the tussle with heavy seas. A huge comber, sweeping over the bow, stove in the forward hatch and started rivets on the deck.

Deck ladders were carried away and the bulwark rail on the port side was bent the length of the well deck. Two stanchions were started and the forward bulkhead of the bridge sprung.

Lifeboat chocks, steam pipe casings and other fittings were carried away and the crew worked with life lines around their waists to repair the damage.

The ship put into Queenstown and made some repairs, then under a time contract to deliver the coal cargo here, she started again for Boston.

Captain and crew said it was the most thrilling trip they ever experienced.

3D AIDE TO QUIT WARNER STAFF

Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner will announce within a few days the resignation of one of his assistants, Gerald J. Callahan of Holyoke, son of the late Superior Court justice Christopher T. Callahan.

Mr. Callahan is now in Washington in connection with the Massachusetts - Connecticut water suit, wishes to give his whole time to his private law practice in Springfield, where he is associated with Dist.-Atty. Charles R. Glaser.

The Callahan resignation will make the third since the first of the year, F. Delano Putnam of Boston and James S. Eastham of Medford having returned to private practice. The attorney-general has filled one of these vacancies and expects to fill the other two by appointments.

Charge Man With Larceny, Forgery

Inspectors Augusta, Dorsey and LaBlanc of the bank squad of the bureau of criminal investigation, arrested Amego DeSoto, 25, of Massachusetts ave., Cambridge, on charges of larceny of $2000 worth of investment trust stock from Elmer L. Hokonson, a letter carrier on a Watertown route, living at the same address.

Two charges of forgery were also entered against DeSoto. Police charge that DeSoto, who lived with his mother-in-law and Hokonson, stole the certificates from a bureau drawer, and represented himself as Hokonson in opening an account with the Day Trust Company, to obtain loans.

Newton Man Buys Racing Schooner

The 58½-foot Seawanhaka schooner Seven Seas, purchased from Van S. Merle-Smith of New York by Warner Battle of Newton, will be raced out of Marblehead next summer, according to plans of the boat's new owner.

The schooner, with her cruising accommodations of a double stateroom aft and a roomy main cabin, combines racing with cruising comforts and, perhaps, start a new two-sticker racing class on the North Shore.

Dr. Reed to Speak

Dr. Thomas Harrison Reed, director of the bureau of government at the University of Michigan and an authority on metropolitan government, will speak at a dinner session of the conference on municipal issues at the Copley-Plaza Hotel Wednesday night. Mayor-elect Curley will also be a speaker, as will mayors of other cities in the State.

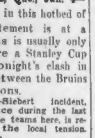
Bruins Go After New Win Record Against Maroons

SIEBERT AND SHORE RENEW FEUD TONIGHT

By BILL GRIMES

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 4—Up here in this hotbed of hockey, excitement is at a height such as is usually only reached before a Stanley Cup game over tonight's clash in the Forum between the Bruins and the Maroons.

The Shore-Siebert incident, which took place during the last meeting of these teams here, is responsible for the local tension. For weeks there has been a heavy demand for tickets and Ernie Garon, former star amateur, who is charged de billets at the Forum, reports that every seat and all standing room have been sold.



Bill Grimes

Cooper Smeaton, referee in chief of the N. H. L., has been assigned to handle the game, but no announcement has been made public as to the official who will work with him.

In all probability, this game will not come up to expectations as a knock down and drag out encounter. Such is usually the case when the crowd is all set to see a rough house battle. There was so much criticism heaped on Siebert and Trottier for their action in that hectic battle last November that these players will curtail their tempers and play within the rules as much as it is possible for such types.

Possibly the step is too progressive for the N. H. L., but maybe Pres. Frank Clader will call the contestants together before the game and issue a few words of warning.

In spite of the fact that he is a member of a visiting team, Eddie Shore will have hundreds of friends in the Forum tonight. Until the run in with Siebert, the Bruin defense star was not over popular here, but through his gameness in refusing to leave the game after being practically hacked to pieces, Shore won over many hitherto hostile fans.

MAROONS IN SLUMP

The Maroons have not been clicking as smoothly as usual of late, and the fact that they are trailing Les Canadiens by a half game does not set well. Their recent losses, coupled with the fact they are playing the Bruins in the Forum, is a gilt edge guarantee that even if they succumb to Boston, they will go down fighting, as only they can fight, especially before a home crowd, when sufficiently riled. And it does not take much to rile them in the Forum.

Accompanied by an enthusiastic crowd of supporters, the Bruins arrived here this morning. The Boston rooters are on hand to lend their aid to the Bruins in setting up a new N. H. L. consecutive record of victories. The Bruins have run their string of wins to 11, which equals the mark established by Les Canadiens, and a successful evening with the Maroons tonight would be a most fitting reward for both the Bruins and the Boston fans.

The Bruins are, in all probability, the strongest outfit ever gathered under the N. H. L. tent. They have played 18 games, of which they have been on the winning end of no less than 16.

The two dark days of the season for the Bruins were Nov. 26 and Dec. 1. The Maroons were the first team to defeat the Bruins, pulling off that stunt three days after the Boston team had slipped over a victory in the Forum. Five days later, the Bruins dropped their second and, up to the present their last, game to the Blackhawks in Chicago.

The Barry line will be assigned to start the game by Manager Art Ross and as this combination of a young star and two very capable veterans has been coming fast of late, the Bruins will offer a stronger and better balanced offense than they did during the last meeting of these clubs.

Bunker Hill Five to Play Malden C. C.

The Bunker Hill S. & A. basketball team will entertain the Malden City Club five at the Charlestown high school gymnasium tonight.

The visitors will have in their lineup, Fish Ellis, former Tufts star, who is now coaching at Brighton Academy, Jackie Fisher of Fordham, De Vunetti of Boston College and Defina of Medford.

The local team will present their usual lineup and hope to add this list of well known stars among their list of victims.

FLATLEY SAYS

THE GREAT SHIRES recalls an old White Sox scandal—Art has discovered that covering the first bag isn't so simple in the ring—still, you must admit the great broadcaster is picking up the fine points of the racket quickly.

More fans will be disappointed if the Shires-Spohrer thing is called off than will sob if there's no row at Miami this winter—as a chess champ, he should be called Arthur the Grate—Landis doesn't mind a ball player picking up an honest penny—but he has a deep anti for the burlap stuff—handling the boxing racket as well as baseball will entitle Kenesaw M. to about 25 additional grand a year, as he figures things—Carnera's contract is cut six ways, but he's big enough to stand it—Primo has the world's greatest feet, but we wonder about the socks.

CAV will be back at Fordham, so every contest the Rams play will be a major game; for the other fellows.

JACK SHARKEY is off for Florida. Steering the family through the long train ride will keep the boxer's mind off all ring troubles. Not that he's worried any. He knows he's out in front of the heavies, and he isn't going to be tossed around.

Jack has trailed along with the New York Garden for a couple of years, but he can find plenty of heavy purses if he decides to cut away. He is the biggest card in the world just now. And after March, he can sign where he pleases. Already he has had offers from Chicago, Detroit and Atlantic City that promise at least as much as anything New York has to bid.

Sharkey has plenty of loyalty and will trail with the Garden if that's possible. But he has plenty of brainy managing and an acute business sense. He isn't going to be run around, or take any chances of getting shuffled out of the picture.

SHARKEY must be satisfied, or a contract war will be on. And the boxing racket could never stand that. Promoters must be good to Jack, for they know a row with Schmeling means another million-dollar gate, without any synthetic ballyhoo.

THE sharpshooters—and there are plenty—are all chasing the big money in boxing. The contracts of the heavy contenders, excepting Sharkey's, are cut more ways than the new bathing suits. The multi-man agents expect to make fortunes with birds like Carnera and Campolo.

So they hesitate to make matches that might result disastrously for their prospective bread winners. Campolo, for instance, is lined up for two or three juicy bouts in New York, so the mob hats to let him walk into Sharkey and a probable knockout in Miami.

Griffiths, more or less out on his own, could be sacrificed more readily. It's just a big money matter, with J. Sharkey having the driver's seat. The gang who more or less run the racket have no part of him, and they don't like that.

But Sharkey will inhale the balmy airs of Florida and bask in the sunshine. He knows he can collect whenever he feels like fighting.

TIME was when the size of an athlete's dogs didn't get his picture in the papers. Canera's will go into history as the dogs of Venice.

THE Boston Garden has given E. Mack the air as matchmaker—which means that the Argonne A. A. will come back into being—and like a tough year for matchmakers, anybow—Al Spohrer is in town, anxious to do some catching—Hank Gowdy of the Braves, we hear reliably, has become the leading contract player of his native Columbus—Eddie Shore does very little coasting in shockey game—the Carnegie Foundation is said to be suffering from the winter frost—the meanest New Year card was left on our auto—the New Year's game debate merely proves that Pittsburgh had a long ride to the coast—and a terrible ride after arrival.

LINEUP AT GARDEN

BOSTON		PROVIDENCE
Loucks, Heyd, lw		rw, Gagnon, Cormier
Waite, Mills, c		c, Chapman, Gaudreault
Boyd, Burke, rw		lw, Hart, Harrington
Mackey, Contant, ld		rd, Desmarais, Lesieur
Oatman, Regan, rd		ld, McVicar, Paulhus
Rheaume, g		g, Murray

Game starts at 8:30.

BOSTON TIGERS will meet their oldest and most bitter rivals once more when the Providence Reds come to the Garden tonight for the next to last game of their Boston series with the Bengals.

Reds, the sensation of the Canadian-American League for the past month, will not return to Boston until March 20.

They are now at the height of the greatest winning streak in Canam history, a streak which has carried them from the bottom of the league to the top in three weeks.

When Sprague Cleghorn undertook the management of the Reds on Dec. 10, they had lost five straight games. Since he has been in command, they have won seven, tied one and lost none.

In the course of their surge they have beaten the Tigers three times straight, and the Boston players are determined to end their period of ascendancy tonight.

The Tigers are in a dangerous mood. Moreover, they have had ample time this week to rest and to practice. Appearances in practice often are misleading, but the final workout, yesterday morning, the team had plenty and finesse than it has shown for some time.

FRASER GONE

Reds will play this time without Gordon Fraser, the defense man, who was the particular thorn in the side of the Bengal in the last two games. His place on the Red defense has been taken by Ludger Desmarais, big Sudbury lumberjack, who played last season for the Boston club.

Cleghorn is expected to start at the points with Slim McVicar, Art Lesieur and Roland Paulhus, who have recovered from the knee injury which has kept him out most of the season, will be available to relieve the defense.

The Providence forward line combinations of Art Chapman, Ginzy Hart and Johnny Gagnon, and Hago Harrington, Leo Gaudreault and Roger Cormier, are intact.

The club showed that it still is going with by whaling Philadelphia Thursday night in the "handbox rink of the Quaker City. Desmarais made his debut as a Red in that game and his play was satisfactory to Manager Cleghorn.

Tigers also will have full strength. Eddie Oatman, veteran of 20 professional campaigns, was sick on Thursday, but turned out for practice yesterday. The bumps and bruises suffered by other members of the team in the battle with Springfield Tuesday have faded away and all appears to be well.

TIGERS INTACT

Tigers have been in the throes of a losing streak for the past month, but Manager Powers has not lost faith in his club and will use his usual combinations against the Reds. Deacon White, Johnny Loucks and Yank Boyd will start on the forward line with Eddie Burke, Reg Mills and Clark Heyd in reserve.

The starting defense will be Reg Mackey and Eddie Oatman with Herb Rheaume, Ponsi Contant and the brilliant Bill Regan will see plenty of work at the points.

600 Athletes in Casey Track Meet

New York, Jan. 4 (INS)—With a record entry of more than 600 athletes, including 34 champions of all varieties, the fourth annual track meet of the Metropolitan council of the K. of C. will be run here tonight at the 23d Regiment armory.

The two-mile special has drawn a fine field which includes Gus Moors of the University of Pittsburgh, national cross-country champion, Joe McCluskey, and others.

Mexico Grid Team to Play at Los Angeles

Mexico City, Jan. 4—California football fans this year will have an opportunity to see the University of Mexico's eleven in action. Armando Urueburto, the team's manager, announced that arrangements have been completed for a game with Occidental College at Los Angeles on September 27.

HOW WILL HE LOOK TOMORROW?

Eddie Shore, star Bruin defenseman, as he looked following the last appearance of the local six in Montreal against the Maroons. Babe Siebert smashed his nose and cut and blackened his eyes. The pair come together again on Forum ice tonight. Will Eddie look as tough tomorrow? Or will Siebert be wearing the plasters? League heads will do all in their power to keep both from harm.

Spohrer in Ring to Save League's Honor

THE honor of the National League persuaded Al Spohrer, Braves' catcher to desert the dugout for the squared circle, according to the admissions of the Tribal backstop upon his arrival in the Hub for his ring premier against Arthur "The Great" Shires, Chicago White Sox first baseman, which will be staged at the Boston Garden next Friday night, when Al Friedman, Roslindale Hebrew, clashes with Ernie Schaaf, thumping Hub sailor, in the main bout.

Spohrer, always popular in the Hub, is anxious that local fans understand his reasons for invading the ring.

"There's a lot of guys I can't lick," said Spohrer upon his arrival. "I don't think I could have licked John L. Sullivan and Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney might have proved too tough. Even Jack Sharkey may be a couple of notches in front of me, but I know there is ONE guy I can lick and that the so-called Great I Am of the White Sox, a certain Mr. Shires.

"He may have scared Hack Wilson off, but there's nothing to that for Hack was scared by the sun, if memory serves me and the American League may have broken the National League in that world's series in which Rogers Hornsby went blind but the National League will pin something on the American League next Friday night, when I present my card to the broadcasting first sacker.

I just simply want to straighten out the National League. They've been in trouble long enough.

"Sure, I'll fight again after I lick Shires. But I'll confine my fighting to baseball players who think they're good. I don't know many fighters who could hold down a major league baseball job and I haven't met many ball players who could win the world's championship! Oh, no, there's nothing lose in my head. I know my own limitations and I hope that Mr. Shires will, too, after next Friday night."

Spohrer works out at Charlie Cardin's gym today at 2:30. It will mean some extra police to handle the crowds, for everybody wants a glimpse at this fighting catcher. He will do all his training there.

So will Ernie Schaaf, for the thumping sailor has deserted his Wrentham camp on account of the weather. The muddy roads make it impossible to do any road work and as Schaaf is eager to be in the best possible condition he decided to move his training base to the Hub.

The feeling that Friedman will beat Schaaf still is being held by Hub fans since the Roslindale boy scored his spectacular knockout over Big Boy Rawson here. Friedman's crushing punch dazzled the fans that night and it is hoped that Friedman will be able to duplicate this wallop against Schaaf.

Of course Schaaf is confident that he can beat Friedman, but he is taking no chances. He plans to be in better condition than he was when he met Johnny Risko in Cleveland in his last bout. And Schaaf insists that he was robbed of the verdict in this one.

Shift Date of B. C. Football Banquet

Boston College's annual football banquet will be held on Thursday, January 9, at Boston College instead of on Wednesday night at the Hotel Commander in Cambridge as previously announced.

This shift in the date was announced today after the plans had been altered by Coach Joe McKenney and the Rev. Fr. Roddy upon return from New York.

WINNER WILL MEET SHIKAT

Either Jim McMillen or Jim London, who clash in the feature match of Billy Avery's all-star card at the Mechanics Building next Wednesday night, will probably be Dick Shikat's next opponent in this city. Every effort will be made to sign the winner of this all-important bout for a shot at German's crown.

The McMillen-London tussle tops an attractive program of five matches, one of which will bring together those two great and huge matmen, Hans Steinke, the German Oak, and George Calza, the Italian champion.

The semifinal match on the card between Steinke and Calza is worthy of a main event at any time and is a fair indication of the cards that Avery is giving the Boston fans.

The third match features Carl Pojedo, the little Lithuanian, and John Pazos. Pazos is receiving the adulation of his countrymen for the convincing manner in which he defeated Charley Fox, the Cleveland police sergeant, whose winning streak had run of victories before he fell before Pazos.

In the other bouts Kola Kwariana will meet Buck Olson and Mike Romana faces Pat Oshker, of Ireland and New York.

McKenney to Speak at Foxboro Banquet

Citizens of Foxboro will honor Pat Smith's all-star football team at the Foxboro Country Club Wednesday evening. There will be a banquet and entertainment.

Other guests will be Bill Broderick of Salem high school, George Hoyt and Smoky Kelliher, Pat Creedon of Boston College, Bill Duncan of Allston, Tom Brady and Stuart Clancy of Holy Cross College.

SHARKEY FAILS TO REACH AGREEMENT WITH GARDEN HEADS; MIAMI GO OFF

By JACK CONWAY

The Boston heavyweight, through Manager Johnny Buckley, has informed William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden Corporation, that he stands behind the program of William Muldoon, veteran member of the New York Boxing Commission, which calls for Sharkey, the American champion, Phil Scott, the British title-holder, and Max Schmeling, the German champion, to fight it out among themselves for the vacated title.

Jack Conway

Sharkey is prepared to sign to box Scott and Schmeling. It is likely that these contests will be staged during the outdoor season.

A Sharkey-Schmeling bout would be generally recognized as for the heavyweight championship of the world. It is the one match, other than a possible meeting between Sharkey and Dempsey, which could restore the million-dollar gate to the boxing game.

The Garden is anxious to stage a Sharkey-Schmeling bout. Jack Dempsey and Atlantic City promoters are also after this ring classic.

FLOYD FITZSIMMONS, Detroit promoter, who has been closely associated with Jack Dempsey since the latter knocked out Jess Willard, is in Boston to talk with Johnny Buckley in regard to a Sharkey-Dempsey bout. Fitzsimmons believes that Dempsey will attempt another comeback this year. A Sharkey-Dempsey bout, if arranged, will take place in Chicago or Detroit. It would probably prove an even greater box office attraction than Sharkey and Schmeling.

Meanwhile, Sharkey, accompanied by Mrs. Sharkey and their three children, are en route to Miami, Fla., for a vacation. Sharkey originally planned the trip as part of his fight program, but decided to go through with it when the Miami contest fell through. He will remain in the South for five to six weeks.

WILLIAM MULDOON, veteran member of the New York boxing commission, warned Sharkey against fighting Tuffy Griffith or any other heavyweight other than Scott or Schmeling, at Miami. He stated that a Sharkey-Griffith match did not mean anything. He declared Griffith is only a promising youngster, who may reach the top in time, if handled properly.

Sharkey and Johnny Buckley decided that Muldoon had the right slant on the heavyweight situation. They think that Sharkey's championship drive would not get anywhere if the Boston battler entered another series of elimination matches.

THE failure of the Garden to secure either Schmeling or Scott as a Miami opponent for Sharkey further complicates the heavyweight situation.

Max Schmeling is at odds with the Garden over his refusal to meet Phil Scott, while the British champion is also warring on the Garden forces. He claims he has not been shown proper consideration since his bout with Otto Von Porat.

MATCHMAKER TOM McARDLE of the Garden is trying to arrange a contest at Miami between Primo Carnera, heavyweight giant from Italy, and Victorio Campolo, Argentine heavyweight.

Carnera, who won and lost to Stribling in bouts that ended in fouls, is in New York, while Campollo will arrive in Gotham on January 8.

Sharkey in Demand by Three Promoters

Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, talked with Johnny Buckley, manager of Jack Sharkey, via long distance telephone, and stated that he was in the field for a bout between the Hub heavy and Max Schmeling of Germany in Chicago next June.

Dempsey said that if he succeeded in getting the match, he would advertise it as a world's heavyweight championship affair and award the winner a special belt.

He also informed Buckley that Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling, had agreed to let the German fight the Brighton boxer in the Windy City.

Meanwhile, representatives of the Mil- Fund show, which is an annual affair in New York every June, are also angling for a Sharkey-Schmeling match. They say the world draw more than $1,000,000 at the gate of the New York ball parks.

Floyd Fitzimmons, Detroit promoter and close pal of Dempsey, made a hurried trip to the Hub to confer with Buckley concerning a match between Tiger Jack and Sharkey in the event that the latter beats Schmeling. Fitzimmons has an idea that Dempsey will do one more comeback next fall and he wants to promote the affair.

Buckley told the Detroiter that he would make no promises until Dempsey definitely declared that he would return to the ring.

RECORD CROWD TO SEE MAT GO

The greatest crowd that has seen a wrestling match since Dynamite Thompson and Strangler Lewis hit it off against Ed Strangler Lewis at Fenway Park last July will pack the Arena to the door next Tuesday night when "Sonny" will defend his title against Bob "Bibber" McCoy of Cambridge in a finish match.

Since the bout was announced a few days ago, Promoter Paul Bowser's office has been in a turmoil. Orders for large blocks of tickets have been received from Cambridge, where McCoy started his athletic career; from Somerville; where he starred with the Dilboy team; from Worcester, where he played leading roles for Holy Cross on the gridiron and on the diamond, and from all parts of Greater Boston.

For the first time since Sonnenberg crashed into the headlines, he has found a competitor to match him as a drawing card, and it is certain that the Arena will be filled with a partisan crowd when the king of the flying tackle defends his crown against the husky young McCoy.

French Fans Razz Tilden in Defeat

Paris, Jan. 4 (INS)—Staging a demonstration that caused him to be booed by a large crowd of spectators, William T. "Big Bill" Tilden went down to defeat today in the finals of the French indoor tennis championships. The victor was Jean Borotra, who won in a bitterly-contested four set match, 6—4, 7—5, 4—6, 6—3.

Tilden objected continuously to the decisions of the linesmen, and he incurred the displeasure of the spectators when he finally lost his temper and shouted to one of the referees:

"Put on your glasses."

The crowd was not the least bit hesitant about expressing its disapproval of this display of temper, and the lanky Californian left the court to the accompaniment of boos and cat-calls.

Toronto and Yale Ice Teams Play in N. Y.

New York, Jan. 4 (AP)—Madison Square Gardens series of college hockey games will wind up tonight with an international struggle between the cracks of Yale and Toronto.

The Elis, with such stars as Palmer, Luce, Iglehart, Wilson-Hickok and Farrell, have yet to meet defeat. They have trounced Michigan three times and Boston University, Dartmouth and the University Club of Boston once each.

Toronto also is unbeaten, the Canadians already having overwhelmed Dartmouth and Harvard in the first two games of their American invasion. Yale beat the Maple Leafs last year, 3 goals to 2.

Hub Schoolboy Hockey Season Opens at Arena Today

2 BOYS HURT IN SCHOOL OPENERS

FOURTEEN Boston ice teams battled at the Arena this morning in the Hub school hockey openers. Although the teams were not in good condition and showed the lack of practice, most of the seven scraps were close.

Two boys were injured in the games. Eddie Powers, Charlestown goalie, was struck on the side of the nose by a puck on a closing shot, and several stitches were required to close the wound.

O'Neil took Powers' place in the nets.

B. C. high gave English a hard fight in the next game, but Coach Wilson's public school boys won out, 3 to 2. Boston Latin and Brighton high battled to a scoreless tie.

PRIMO CARNERA IS FRENCHMAN

New York, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Daily News in a copyright story today said Primo Carnera, giant Italian boxer now here, forewore allegiance to Italy last June and became a citizen of France.

In the June 23 edition of the Journal Official of the French Republic, under the heading "naturalized French by the law of August 10, 1927," said the Daily News, appears the following:

"Decree of citizenship signed on June 13 by M. Gaston Doumergue, President of the French Republic, and by M. Louis Barthou, guardian of the seal and Minister of Justice."

The newspaper said it also learned that both the French and Italian consulates were investigating possible irregularity in reports that would result in immediate deportation proceedings.

On his arrival in this country on Tuesday, Carnera was met by an Italian delegation, but the Daily News said his passport bore the stamp of the French consul, waiving military duty. At the Italian consulate it was said there was no record on Carnera, but that an investigation would be made into his switch of citizenship.

At the time Carnera became a citizen of France an elimination contest was in progress in that country to determine the French heavyweight champion. Carnera was invited to compete, but refused.

STAR ENTRIES IN GLOVE SHOW

The greatest amateur tournament in the history of New England will be staged in Mechanics building Monday night, when the New England Golden Glove championships will be decided.

The heavyweight and light-heavyweight classes, always the most attractive to the fans, promise to bring out some of the most sensational fighting displayed here in many years.

In the the heavyweight class will be Al Dean, hard-hitting Medford giant, and his home-town rival, Tony Cechini; Willie Indrisano of South Boston, recent winner of the international tournament, and Indrisano's East Boston rival, Salvatore Andracchio.

With two heavyweights from Medford and two from East Boston competing, the class promises to provide the high-lights in a show that should glisten with action. All of them have fought their way to the top of the heavyweight heap through a season of heavy fighting.

Indrisano, by his victory in the international tourney, leads all the rest, but he will have to weather a gale of punches from the formidable Dean and from the hard-fighting Cechini and Andracchio if he is to add the Golden Glove title to his collection of trophies.

The 175-pound class promises an even more rugged display of fighting, for Ig Gibson of Medford and Pat O'Flaherty, bitter rivals, will be two of the four competitors. They fought a slashing fight in Mechanics Building some weeks ago, and renewed it in the dressing room when Gibson received the decision.

SPEAKER MAY PILOT ROBINS

New York, Jan. 4—It is reported here that Tris Speaker will soon be appointed manager of the Brooklyn club of the National League with Wilbert Robinson, president-manager, confining his activities to executive duties.

Speaker, former manager of the Cleveland American League club, managed Newark of the International League last year. Robinson for three years has been acting in the dual capacity of president and manager of Brooklyn.

Relations between Robinson and S. W. McKeever, vice-president of the club, have been strained for some time and McKeever has opposed renewal of the incumbent's contract, either as president or manager.

The decision to name Speaker as bench manager is said to represent a truce between the warring Ebbets and McKeever factions. The Ebbets heirs have stood staunchly behind Robinson.

1930 Yacht Season Should Be Best Ever

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

YACHTS and yachting should reach a new peak of public interest during this year of 1930 which will have its climax in the visit of Sir Thomas Lipton, in September, with a new challenger for the America's Cup.

The season just ended—or it might be better to say the year just ended, for the season hereabouts has been closed two months—witnessed the greatest revival of yachting in many years, with Boston the fusing point of two cables of interest, one reaching along the North Shore and up the coast to Bar Harbor, the other extending down the South Shore and rounding the Cape arm to include the Buzzards Bay and Long Island Sound clubs.

It is certainly not too early to glance ahead at the 1930 season, especially in view of the fleet of boats already turning southward for the winter in semi-tropical waters.

From all New England, and particularly from Marblehead and Boston, boats that will not rest on cradles when the snow flies are Dixie-bound, the majority to cruise during the next three months off the Florida coast

NEW MIAMI RECORD

At Miami alone, reservations for yachting space already have established a new high record, far in excess of those made at this time last year. By January 15 fully 300 yachts, a large proportion of them from our own waters, should be riding in Miami Harbor.

The season along our own coast is not so distant. Annually, as the interest in boats and boating becomes more general, we have an earlier season opening, unofficial, to be sure, for the real contests do not get under way until summer, but an opening, nevertheless, with hundreds of craft of all classes in the water again and new boats sliding down the ways.

Harbinger of coming events will be the annual meeting of the Corinthian Yacht Club, to be held next Wednesday evening at the B. A. A. There will be outlined plans for a lively season of racing which will revolve about the Marblehead Corinthians.

The three flag officers and the total number of Corinthian have been named for another season in the report of the Corinthian's nominating committee. Charles A Welch will continue as commodore, George E. McQuesten as vice-commodore and William V. Pitcher as rear-commodore. Albert W. Finlay continues as treasurer and John P. Hines as secretary, elected the new secretary. There will be little change in the standing committees of last year.

Yachtsmen know, better than anybody else, that there is always something new in the wind. That phrase, in its application to yacht designing for 1930, is likely to be well borne out.

MANY ADVANTAGES

In design of structure, perhaps the most notable change will be the incorporation of the cruiser stern idea in the larger yachts, particularly those Diesel-engined.

The cruiser stern features the new Hamburg-American liners, a few British boats and the new United Fruiters and, as always, transatlantic liner design will be reflected in the raciest construction of small pleasure craft.

The stern has many advantages in its underwater similarity to a modified double-ender and its deck resemblance to the old Dunbarton stern. It does not lend itself easily to vibration and is so short as to be rugged. Then, accomodations can be carried farther aft, allowing more stern room below deck.

A majority of the new yachts under construction have superstructure stepped below the main deck to discount rolling in heavy weather. Too, there is a trend to eliminate the pilot house on the medium size craft, the house being replaced by the open bridge.

As to new rigs on the sail craft, there can be no doubt but what the Bermudian placement of the metre rig and there are many other innovations planned for all classes from the smallest sloop-rigged to ketch and schooner.

The season closed was, in-the main, a sloop season. The activities of the two-stickers were principally confined to the cruises of the Eastern and New York yacht clubs. This will hold true for 1930, but in somewhat lesser degree as interest in the racing of larger craft is revived by the visit of the famous Irish yachtsman.

Both Astor Cups went to Marblehead yachtsman, Joseph V. Santry, lifting the schooner trophy with Pleoine and Charles L. Harding taking the sloop trophy with his Malabar.

After a stay of only one year at its Oyster Bay home, the Seawanhaka Cup Fleet came across the Atlantic to Scotland, the prize of the challenge, Cowes, served by W. Frank Robertson of the Royal Northern Yacht Club of the Clyde. Cup defender Frank C. Paine's eight-metre sloop, Gypsy, sailed by Ray Hunt, in the deciding race of five-match series.

Nina, Paul Hammond's schooner that won the Queen Victoria Cup transatlantic race in 1926, won the Cruising Club of America's 1929 ocean distance race from New London to Gibson Island, outdistancing the largest fleet ever entered in the event.

PICTURESQUE EVENT

Marblehead's 30-square metre match with the Swedes and Germans was one of the most picturesque events along the coast. The Germans took the President Hoover Cup in the Manhasset Bay meeting, but thereafter the Swedish Bacchant captured every other event.

Sailing under Annisquam Yacht Club colors, Charles A. Welch's five Yankee won the Manhasset Bay Challenge cup.

GOOD GOLF

In addition to the thing being better because of the size of the new ball, the average golf will get hold of the ball much better with the irons because the bigger ball will help him to attention better and keep his vision focused on the hitting spot. cure for many small golfing faults, such as topping and hitting under the ball. Additionally, I think the new iron blade takes hold of the new ball much better, much more solidly. Though that feeling may have been, and no doubt was, wholly my imagination. Still, it makes no difference whether it is imagination or reality, if you as an average golfer get hold of the ball better you are going to make better shots and be a better golfer, and if the new ball does no more than that for you it will be the means to it worth-while improvement in your play while it will bring the incidental enhancement of greater enjoyment of your golfing rounds.

SHIRES WILL LEARN FATE TODAY

DETROIT, Jan. 4 (AP)—James (Bingo) Brown, chairman of the Michigan State Boxing Commission, said last night that the case of Arthur (The Great) Shires, under the commission's ban in Michigan for an alleged attempt to bribe Battling Criss, Michigan boxer, to "lie down," would be taken up at a meeting of the commission with newspaper men here this afternoon.

The meeting originally was scheduled for January 9 at Lansing.

The time of the meeting was advanced at the instance of Shires, who said he was innocent and declared he would "stick around in Detroit until the whole matter is ironed out, no matter how long it took."

Criss' manager made the charge that an undisclosed sum of money had been offered his boxer to "lay down."

"If I have to do it, I'll cancel my next fight and see this thing through to the end," the ball boy of baseball said last night. "I don't know what it's all about, but I want it straightened out, and I want to make those newspapers quit printing all this knocking against me. I don't want anybody to lay down on me. This stuff is liable to ruin my whole boxing career, as well as my baseball reputation."

N. B. A. Will Follow Michigan's Decision

Cincinnati, Jan. 4 (AP)—The National Boxing Commission, which temporarily suspended Arthur "The Great" Shires from fighting in the 52 states under its control, will be guided by the Michigan State Athletic Commission's decision in action to reinstate him, President Stanley Isaacs said.

The National Association barred Shires from future bouts until his standing is cleared up in Michigan, at the suggestion of the commission of that State last night.

WILDE DUE TO SUCCEED MACK

Al. Wilde, matchmaker of the Queensboro Club of New York, is expected to be named to succeed Eddie Mack as matchmaker at the Mahon Garden.

It has been understood in New York boxing circles for some time that Mack was slater to go because the Madison Square Garden bosses are opposed to a local man having control of the matchmaking at the North Station arena.

And, in the event that Wilde doesn't get the job, it is believed certain that some other outsider will.

Mack signed a two-year contract to act as matchmaker at the Garden a year ago today. The agreement called for him to receive $10,000 the first year and also 10 per cent of the profits derived from boxing. For his first year on the job, Mack is said to have been paid $12,700. He was paid $7500, according to reports, for the unexpired term of his contract.

Mack has seen the handwriting on the Garden wall for a long while and he was all prepared to launch his Argonne A. A. again when his resignation was accepted

Roper Returns as Princeton Coach

Philadelphia, Jan. 4 (INS)—William (Bill) Roper will return for another year as coach of the Princeton football eleven, it was reported here today. He is expected, however, to retire at the end of the 1930 season.

Hanley Signs Up for Seven Years

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 4 (INS)—Dick Hanley, football coach at Northwestern University, has agreed to a seven-year contract with Evanston school, it was reported today.

Hanley, who coached the Eastern all-star team that defeated a western representation New Year's day, will sign the contract upon his return from California this month, it is understood.

Blackhawks Buy Graham From Tulsa

Chicago, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Chicago Blackhawks of the National Hockey League made another move to strengthen their defense today by purchasing Edward "Teddy" Graham, defense star, from the Tulsa Oilers of the American Association. The Hawks sent Ralph Taylor and cash for Graham.

FAMILY QUARRELS MAR MANY MARRIAGES

More Deeply You Love, More Sensitive You Are

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

FAMILY rows!

That's not a pleasant phrase! Not only disagreeable words can describe bickering and squabbling which mar so many marriages. And the strange part is, those who make such other utterly miserable in this way are usually fond of each other—possibly, deeply in love!

There are ever so many reasons for family quarrels. In some cases sheer tiredness may be the cause. When nerves have been under strain, due to the worry and hurry of the days' work, or the monotonous roar of the elevated rushing by, or the sooty fog of a soft-coal city or the interminable noise and questioning of youngsters these frazzled nerves may reach the point of unreasoning irritability, leading to quick retorts and sarcasm. Or perhaps a mood of jealousy is responsible for the trouble.

Beatrice Fairfax

The quarrel comes, sharp and sudden. Both husband and wife say things they don't mean, although at the instant they think they mean them. Each finds a thrill in words more cutting than the other's.

Then comes the sickening reaction.

Mrs. John decides:

"He doesn't love me, or he couldn't say a thing like that!"

Follow the still more dreadful thought:

"I love him, yet I said that awful thing to him! Oh, suppose I never see him again to tell him how sorry I am!"

Of course, the two make up, because they care for each other. And the making-up is very sweet.

"We'd never say things like that to each other again!" they resolve. But they do. And when quarrels come thick and fast, they may leave scars that sink deep into the heart and never quite heal.

An occasional quarrel may be only human. For the more deeply you love, the more sensitive and imaginative you are.

"Is even marriage worth wrangling?" Mrs. John asks herself in her hurt idealism, the first year. But after all, only a poor, shallow love can be destroyed by an occasional dispute. And in time a husband and wife who care for each other unselfishly, learn to compromise, to adjust themselves to each other and to utterly forget as well as forgive, so they remain loyal, ardent lovers. That is the fine art of living.

"Do you suppose we have more rows ahead?" Mr. John reflected on one occasion, when the two had parted angrily, only to come irresistibly together again.

And Mrs. John answered:

"I want—to be with you—I want you here—you are home. I know the price—but our marriage—is worth it—for us."

Those words really love, can stand the shock of an occasional disagreement and still love each other dearly, just as they can see each other at unromantic moments.

Now and then a marriage proves so disastrous that it cannot be salvaged. Only the other day a woman told me that she had waged year after year, a losing battle for peace and happiness at home. The wildest drunkenness of her bootlegger husband grew on him, and their little daughter was becoming affected by the degrading home atmosphere.

Where a husband or a wife is the slave of a vicious habit, it may be wise to separate rather than drag one or more lives into the gutter. But such instances are unusual.

The time to study a man is before you marry him. Wait until you are sure of his fine dependable character and of mutual love and suitability, then marry him and carry your happiness and harmony from day to day. There are wonderfully happy, affectionate marriages on all sides, but we hear little of them because they are the rule rather than exception, and so do not often get into the newspaper headlines. When a husband and wife live together happily without quarreling, the children unconsciously imitate their kindness and tactful good manners.

ALPHABET QUILT—BLOCK 17—THE QUEEN

WHEN the king was appliqued on his block the club members had wondered whether the ques would not appear by the time the letter Q came by, and sure enough she did. Such a perky little queen. Joan wanted to know whether she was the queen who ate the bread and honey while the King counted his money. Aunt Nancy said she thought so, for this queen looked as if she had had many a meal of bread and honey.

For this block the choice of materials is wide. Of course all colors and material chosen must be fast. One member made the queen's face pale pink. She gave her yellow hair, and a crown of white and yellow.

Another member made the hair soft brown with a crown of yellow. A third member made crown and hair one piece. She chose yellow and then worked a star pattern in lazy daisy stitch on the crown itself. This is the easiest method because the hair and crown may be cut in one piece.

But most of the ruffs were made of a separate piece of cloth appliqued and then trimmed with diagonal lines in simple running stitch soft red. The letter Q is outlined in fine chain or outline stitch with fast color embroidery cotton similar to that used for all the letters in the previous blocks of the quilt.

The members made the block as follows: The paper pattern was first cut from the paper and held flat against the window pane.

Over this was laid the fine white gingham square cut 6¼ by 6¼ inches. With a sharp pointed lead pencil the letter and queen were drawn onto the cloth

Then the paper was pasted onto light weight card or tag board.

After the paper pattern was dry the pieces were cut. The face and neck were laid on pink material. The hair and crown were laid on yellow or brown. The crown may be cut separately from the hair, of course.

The ruff was cut.

In cutting, an allowance for turning under was made on all sides of all pieces. This allowance was one-quarter inch.

After the edges were turned under and basted in place the pieces were pressed.

The face was laid in place over the penciled outline on the white block. When this had been appliqued with fine, slanting invisible hemming stitches the ruff was put on. Following this came the hair and crown, separately or together.

Then the eye was embroidered in satin stitch, as was the mouth. The ruff was stitched with fine running stitch. The crown was worked with lazy, daisy flowers unless a figured material had been chosen for the crown.

When finished the queen was a joy to look at. Joan hugged the block and wrinkled it so that Aunt Nancy had to press it all over again.

Block 18 will appear in next Wednesday's Boston Evening American.

H. G. Wells Writes on 'Science of Life'

In Collaboration With Prof. Julian Huxley and G. P. Wells

OF ORGANIZATION

A NUMBER of different kinds of animals are classified with the lobster in a separate phylum, the Arthropods, just as the vertebrates are classified together in one phylum, because in the general plan of their organization they resemble each other and are profoundly different from other living creatures.

H. G. Wells

The abdomen of a lobster, we noted, is composed of a series of hard segments, flexibly jointed together; each segment bears a pair of appendages.

The cephalothorax, on the other hand, has a single shield of armor and bears 13 pairs of limbs. Now when we examine other arthropods we find that the segmental plan of structure, as illustrated by the lobster's abdomen, is a very important one. It underlies the organization of the whole group.

In many arthropods, such as the centipedes or some of the smaller and less specialized crustaceans, the greater part of the body consists of a chain of hard segments joined together and each bearing a pair of appendages, and indeed all the members of the group are best regarded as modifications of chains of this type.

In a lobster the first 13 segments are solidly welded together, forming the cephalo-thorax, only the appendages remaining distinct from each other; in other arthropods the underlying plan has been modified in other ways.

Imagine a chain of segments; an enormously extended lobster abdomen; each segment has a strong armor of skeleton outside it and bears a pair of jointed appendages.

That is a diagrammatic, generalised arthropod. By playing on this scheme, by varying the number of segments, by welding some together and keeping others distinct, by modifying and adapting different appendages for the performance of different functions, the various existing arthropods could be produced.

The idea that the arthropods are variations upon a pervading segmental theme can be applied also to their internal architecture.

All arthropods live inside their skeletons; all have a general body-cavity filled with a pale blue blood; all have a nervous system running along the lower sides, and if, as is usual, they possess a heart it is in the back.

But the various structures may shift to and fro along the length of the body, from segment to segment.

The heart, for example, may be a relatively small organ placed in the middle of the back as in the lobster, or it may be a long tube running down most of the length of the body, with a pair of valved openings in each segment

The position of the excretory, respiratory and reproductive organs varies from creature to creature. And the structure of the digestive organs varies—there may, for example, be no gastric mill.

SECTION 2A.

Shrimps, Crabs, Water-Fleas, and Barnacles.

THE first class of arthropods, the Crustacea, includes a great and varied assemblage of forms. Nearly all of these animals are aquatic, breathing by means of gills, and most of them are marine—indeed, they are the only great group of marine arthropods.

The more familiar forms—familiar because they are the largest and also because they are edible—are the lobsters, crayfish, prawns, shrimps, and crabs These animals are all very similar to each other.

A crab is essentially a lobster who has given up the abdomen flapping method of swimming and whose abdomen, small and feeble, is permanently bent forward under his broadened cephalothorax.

The hermit-crabs also belong to this group; they are lobster-like creatures whose abdomen is not hard, but soft and delicate, and who have therefore to wear the deserted shell of a dead seasnail on their hinder parts, not for modesty, but as a protection against the many prowling and hungry creatures of the sea.

Other marine creatures, not quite so well known, are the wood-lice and the group including the so-called "sea-slaters" or pygs, which differ in a number of important points from the true crustacea.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

ELINOR GLYN says they should—

And Marjory is all smoked up over it.

Here Marjory has spent 19 perfectly good years acquiring a tennis stroke and the Australian crawl and a hiking record, and gobs of health, and a comeback like a punching bag.

Elsie Robinson

And a short, for 19 years Marjory has been eliminating all the female in her nature—and qualifying to be a Regular Guy and now along comes Madam Glyn and tells her this is all wrong.

And the fashion experts agree with her.

Will they allow Marjory to run around any longer in bare legs, sun tan and a bunch of freckles? Not if they knew their basting thread! No, sir—she must wear skirts to her ankles—swishy swashy, traily skirts . . . and a bodice and a tiny wasp waist . . . and dangly curls and frilly flounces.

And she must change her manner as well as her silhouette. She must be meek, feminine and fluttery and frail. She must drape herself helplessly on the furniture and gasp:

"Oh, aren't you wonderful!" to all her Boy Friends. And never, never, NEVER must she let the B. F. guess that she can cut-run, cut-box, cut-rock and cut-smart him. For the day of the Womanly Woman has arrived again, and Marjory has been warned that she must tester into line or be dropped from current history.

So—"Are women really mysterious?" wails Marjory, "and must we dress and act that way?"

They aren't and you don't, Marjory.

And this whole backslo-bustlesmoothest sounds to me like somebody has been eating too much charlotte russe.

Women are only mysterious insofar as all living things are mysterious. Their reputed sphinx-like quality is all boosy, my child . . . they're just about as sphinxy as a rice pudding. They have no qualities which men do not also possess in common human cussedness, simple human charm. All our artificial sex distinctions were based not on the mysterious nature of Shes, but on plain economic necessity. Women acted de lune not because God made them that way, but because it was good for business. And they bunooed themselves and the men into thinking that they were actually different.

Wrap a potato long enough in pink tissue paper and it'll probably believe, in time, that she is a regular rind. But neither potatoes nor ladies have pink tissue paper rinds. They're both regular vegetables

It has taken women about 50 years to realize this fact, and at last to begin to enjoy their health and use their shapes. And that enjoyment has been mutual. Men have liked women in the last five years as they never liked them before in human history. One hour of the sort of companionship enjoyed by the sunburned girls and the freckled boys of this last summer was worth a hundred years of the simpering shinannigans hitherto in practice between the sexes. And now, dogeone 'em, along come the fashion experts and tell us to get back into our dry goods and act coy.

Well, maybe some of us will. But I've got a hunch that most of us will arise on our bare and suntanned shins and snicker—

"AW, YOU'RE KIDDING!"

The Truth

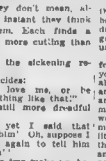
ABOUT GOOD TASTE IN DRESS.

By ELINOR GLYN.

I WENT to a party the other night for one of the foreign kings and his queen, who were visiting England just now.

It was given by the members of the kings nation, who are in business here.

The queen because she was going among her own people might not have very gorgeous jewels or Parisgowns, arrived in the simplest red chiffon dress, and her only jewels were one single string of pearls.



Elinor Glyn

You remember, girls, I was talking to you about good taste a little while ago. Now, this was an illustration of true good taste, that is why I am telling you of it.

The queen was so refined and sensitive that she would never for a moment put any one out of countenance nor outshine any of her hosts.

Then, at another party given by an English noble, she blazed with exquisite diamonds. This having a sense of the fitness of things.

Always "feel" atmosphere, girls, and judge of what your surroundings will be before you decide which frock you will wear, and remember it is better, if you are not quite certain of the occasion, to be under-dressed than over-dressed.

Some women have this "dress sense"—naturally, others not at all. You will see one of a family always looking smart and suitably gowned and another will always look dowdy and wrong. Face the fact ruthlessly, Gracie and Maud, if you have not this gift, and secure advice from some friend who you can see possesses it.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

"OH, I DO hope they'll be happy!" sighed Mrs. Divot, surreptitiously dabbing her eyes, as she and Mrs. Green walked under the canopy to their waiting car. "A wedding always makes me so sort of choky and panicky."

"Happy!" repeated Mrs. Green, tucking the robes around them. "Why shouldn't Ed Bunker and his wife be happy? They're both good golfers."

"But, just ONE taste in common doesn't make a marriage!" protested Mrs. Divot, doubtfully. "And off the links they're as different as a polar bear and a South American Chihuahua. She likes bridge and dancing and light novels, and he goes in for anthropology and smokes a pipe."

"Don't worry about them, darling!" Mrs. Green said soothingly "Golf isn't just a game of skill, you know—it's a whole philosophy!

"Next to marriage, there is no other vocation on earth in which the spirit of sportsmanship, nerve, honor, fair play and a square deal—is so vital as in golf."

"But marriage requires such a lot of FAITH, too," insisted Mrs. Divot

"Not as much as golf!" laughed Mrs. Green. "Faith grows so naturally on the fairway that people don't even notice its blooming! Faith in each other and—in yourself. Why, my dear, if you haven't faith in the one you're paired off with, you've lost the match before you start!"

"And that goes for matrimony as well as golf," agreed Mrs. Divot thoughtfully.

"Amen," said Mrs. Green. "If you can't trust a player better than your own opponent you have not more faith in a woman than you have in your own ears—don't tee off in golf or matrimony! You'll foozle the very first shot.

"All of which is just good sportsmanship! And you're a good sport, you just naturally believe in your partner; you just naturally build your partner up and act as his or her cheer leader

"A good sport shouts, 'Great shot!' when partner makes a long drive true to the pin, and 'Good try!' when partner scuffs or tops. A good sport always boosts—and never bullies—on or off the links. And that's why I say that, in spite of anthropology and bridge, the Bunkers are going to play a wonderful twosome over Life's course. All good golfers make good husbands and wives and go to heaven when they die, darling!"

"But they won't be happy there," laughed Mrs. Divot, "unless there's a fairway, and they can button their vests back, and make a perfect score!"

work. Yes—that Partridge and Montgomery should get Elliott in the dark passage, where once he got aim. This crime need never have been—two beings, one of them vastly more precious than I, would be living today if Guy Elliott had minded his own business; if he'd kept his face out of my affairs. I've evened my score with him.

"It was I, too, that had Slim Partridge change into Elliott's clothes after they dumped him here. I that had Slim ride in Minetti car to Lafayette sq., where for 10 months I watched Billy Bryce at play. I, who had a second machine under Partridge down the Skyline Boulevard. He stopped long enough to change his clothes and return Elliott's things to me. So I could dress him in them when I left him at the ransom scene.

"And I who phoned Milis Field to have the plane tuned up for Ace takeoff. The one thing I didn't, perhaps couldn't, anticipate was the presence of Elliott's girl there. She guessed it all! But for her—even blundering as Ace did in the storm—but for Elliott's girl they'd have made good the getaway.

"All went well. They reached the field I'd staked out in Gilroy. They found the shed with the gasoline I'd left there. They took off again Tuesday morning at dawn. Thus far, I led them.

"All right! They'll have him. Perhaps they'll even land Partridge alive—though I doubt it. But they will never get the three on me!

"Goodbye fellows—it was a short life, I ask this favor—deliver the several packages, articles and notes you'll find on the table to the parties to whom they are addressed. All are carefully labeled.

"If you want to know why I got into this, and why I'm now tying here, you'll find a complete answer on the table. There is my story with its details and evidence.

"Kind regards—

TOM BURNS.

On the table was a motley assortment of articles and notes A pair of handcuffs, foot-shackles and chain labled:

"With these, I held Guy Elliott. But first I carefully bound wrists and ankles with soft cloth that no marks should appear, and no evidence that he'd been imprisoned would be left. I wanted the police to hold him—charge him

A box of powders

"I put these in his coffee whenever it was necessary to have him sleep. He got several, almost one too many last Friday night. Put him out until Sunday. Sorry! Ha, ha!

A book, attached to which was a key and a note: "Here you will find the details of this real ROMANCE. Something beautiful and precious that died. Something ugly and repellant that lived. How did I get away from the flume last Friday night? What have I done with the ransom? Right before you, boys!

"And how did I re-enter this house at 11 o'clock last night with the cops watching? They say my car entered the garage about 10 o'clock and didn't go out again. They're right! But I slept in this cottage Friday night . . . and I was out in the hills at midnight Friday, when I took Bryce's $10,000 and Laura Dawn's $10,000. He didn't have the whole of it. Not a bit of difference did it make though he put ten million there His child was doomed!"

A box with an envelope addressed to Laura Dawn. The envelope was unsealed. The note said: "Here is your $10,000, I am truly sorry for what you have suffered. I hope your girl comes out of it. I don't want your money. Money is worthless to me NOW. It's been worthless since last Christmas, when Tommy died."

Near to this box was a tin plate.

Here was a mound of ashes Under the tin plate was an open letter addressed to William Bryce:

This is what it said:

"Please be sure that Bryce gets that heap of ashes and also this attached message. You can read it. Now if you want to know about the woman who aided me while I had Elliott a prisoner, take this last key. It opens a panel in the east wall over there. You'll find the lady.

"Give the attached note to Bryce."

The last message to Bryce said this:

"Your grandson is dead. It was agreed between us that he should be killed if any of our plans went wrong. Montgomery was stalling Elliott. Montgomery is a coward. You know Slim Partridge. Cease hope."

Good Sunday Breakfast

IF YOU are a believer in twosmeis on Sunday, you probably take special pains to have an extra attractive breakfast substantial enough to tide the folks over until their 1-to-3 afternoon dinner.

Martha Lee

Fruit, of course, we must have — perhaps canned grapefruit is so delicious properly chilled and such a delightful convenience as well.

ORANGE OMELET

5 tbsps. orange juice
¼ tsp. baking powder
4 tbsps. powdered sugar
½ tsp. salt
Grated rind of 1 orange
2 tbsps. butter

Separate eggs. To yolks add orange juice and beat until light and thick. Beat whites until frothy; add baking powder and beat until stiff. Add powdered sugar, salt and grated orange rind; then fold into first mixture. Place butter in frying pan; when melted turn in egg mixture and cook gently 5 minutes on top of stove; then place in moderate oven (350 deg.) for 15 minutes. Score in center, turn over, serve on hot platter and garnish with slices of orange.

The Sally Lunn dough can be made some time Saturday and kept on ice ready to beat up half an hour before breakfast. Or you can set it late Saturday night and have it ready for use Sunday morning.

SALLY LUNNS

1 yeast cake
1 tbsp. sugar
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 pint milk
4 cups sifted flour
4 tbsps. soft butter
2 eggs
1 tsp. salt

Dissolve yeast and sugar in lukewarm water; when dissolved add to milk which has been scalded and cooked to lukewarm, with 2 cups flour to make a sponge. Beat for 5 minutes. Add egg and soft butter, then add remaining 2 cups flour, sifted with salt and beat until smooth. Pour into greased muffin pans, cover and let rise until double in bulk. Sprinkle with sugar and chopped nuts and bake in a hot oven (400 deg.) for 20 minutes.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

'This Is She' Is Correct

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN:

Please tell me which is the correct way to set lattice? My sister-in-law thinks it is a garnish and should be left on the table, but I is to be eaten with the food it is served with. Who is right?

R. B.

LETTUCE should be eaten with the food with which it is served. It is considered in the world why it should be "left" on the plate if one wishes to eat it.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you kindly tell me the proper way of telling the time? A said "Twenty minutes of ten." B said "Nineteen forty."

2. Upon answering one's telephone call, should one say "This is she," or "This is her"?

A. B. C.

EITHER is correct.

2. "This is she" is correct. The rule is that any part of the verb to be is followed by the nominative case. She is in the nominative case and her is in the objective. "It is I" and "That is they" and "Is that he?" are correct.

SIMONDS CHART IS STUDIED BY EXECUTIVES

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor

Leading New York newspapers tomorrow are to reproduce the famous Simonds Ratio Chart, which in 1928 indicated business and financial trends of 1929 with remarkable clarity. The chart is sponsored by Alvan T. Simonds, president of the Simonds Saw & Steel Co. of Fitchburg and Boston, the American Statistical Association, which met in Washington, Dec. 27, called for an exhibition and reading the Simonds chart, which was presented by president Simonds' assistant, John G. Thompson.

Because of the great importance of the new gold movement, and of it being a considerable portion of our annual review to a study of it. The New York Federal Reserve Bank evidently is in complete agreement with our estimate, since it announces it has temporarily discontinued issuing daily statements of gold movements in lieu of the weekly statements it have hitherto been released every Thursday afternoon. The "Old Lady of Threadneedle Street," otherwise known as the Bank of England, is also issuing daily statements on the gold movement.

Prof. W. J. Cunningham

Prof. William J. Cunningham of Harvard, last year's president of the Traffic Club of New England, agrees with our view that big railroad mergers are a long way off. He is also in accord with our finding that the I. C. C. plan has more objectors than supporters. Our advice soon after the inception of the plan was for investors not to buy stocks with the idea that the I. C. C. plan would be realized.

A dispatch from Wall St. stating that railroad financing this year would be almost entirely confined to bond issues in view of stock market conditions, was almost immediately followed by the announcement that the Southern Pacific directors recommended an increase of 3,000,000 shares in the common stock. There appears to be no hurry about the increase, however, as the matter will await the stockholders' annual meeting April 9, by which time stock market conditions may have changed entirely.

The delay on railroad consolidation action by Congress may add to the delay which would follow if Congress acted promptly. Financial authorities, including Prof. W. J. Cunningham of Harvard, quoted in this column yesterday, say that consolidations of long time would elapse before any important mergers were effected. Now we are told an extension of holding companies' investigation of holding companies by all public utility securities will be proposed in resolution to be offered by Chairman Parker (R.) of New York, of the House commerce committee.

It will call for an investigation by the House committee or a sub-committee. The purpose would be to ascertain effect of such holding companies on interstate operations of utilities. The holding companies of railroad securities will be given particular attention, but, Chairman Parker says, all holding companies of utilities will be probed with view to determining whether remedial legislation for federal control of such companies is necessary.

Representative Hoch (R.) of Kansas, a member of the committee, said investigation of rail holding companies was advisable before any action by Congress on railroad consolidation legislation. This same view has been expressed by Chairman Jones Commerce (R.) of Michigan of the Senate commerce committee.

Reports that the Boston & Maine had been interested" in acquisition of the Central Vermont Railway were discredited by Boston & Maine and Canadian National Railway officials Sir Henry W. Thornton said Canadian National "has received no proposals for the purchase of the Central Vermont and at the present time has no intention of parting with that property." Prof. William Z. Ripley stated he had agreed to co-operate with Providence interests behind the project to open the Hoosac in New England line, but denied that he had been "retained" by the Providence Chamber of Commerce.

Providence Journal says the request that directors of the New Haven meet in conference representatives of the Providence Chamber of Commerce, preferably during the week of January 12, has been forwarded to Edward G. Buckland, chairman, by Clemens J. Prance, industrial director of the Chamber, as preliminary step to the State New Haven's co-operation in the move to complete the Southern New England Railroad. Legislation to meet situation in Massachusetts, where the charter of Southern New England has expired, will be introduced next week. Preparation of a bill for charter renewal for two years has been entrusted to R. Loring Young, counsel for Associated Industries of Massachusetts and former speaker of Massachusetts House.

8 INDUSTRIES EMPLOY BULK OF WORKERS

Of the 48,580,000 men and women in the continental United States, who, in 1928, earned money with which to support themselves and their 72,726,000 dependents, about 38,000,000 chose their occupations from among eight great industries.

These, in the order of the number of employees are, manufacturing, agriculture, mercantile, transportation, government, construction, mining, quarries and oil wells, and banking. The 11,000,000 or so other earners were employed by the unclassified industries, which, although individually small compared with those already named, collectively contribute a large income.

This information and much more bearing upon the nation's business, is contained in a 500-page report to be published soon by the National Bureau of Economic Research, under the title, The National Income and Its Purchasing Power. This gives the results of an exhaustive investigation by Dr. Williford I. King and a corps of assistants all under the general direction of Profs. Edwin F. Gay and Wesley C. Mitchell, directors of research.

Advance figures taken from a copyrighted statement, issued today, by the National Bureau on "gainful occupations" cover the years from 1909 to 1928, the complete figures being brought up to 1927.

Tables prepared by the bureau's experts indicate that the number of employes who chose the work of some one of the eight principal industries moved steadily upward during the two decades covered, except in the case of agriculture. In 1909 those who worked on the farms numbered 8,723,000. By 1927 enough farmers had taken up other pursuits to bring the number of those left on the farms down to 8,432,000, or, a loss to that industry of 301,000.

In contrast to this, the report shows that manufacturing has increased the number of its employees from 7,930,000 in 1909 to 10,746,000 in 1927. The number grew steadily until 1919 but since that date there has been a shrinkage of about 750,000.

Hearing on Water Workers Put Off

Lowell, Jan. 4—For the second time in two weeks, postponement has been ordered on the hearings in the cases of four suspended water works employes. The hearings first were scheduled for last Saturday and put over until today, and today they were again put over for a week. The four employes involved are Clerk Lewellyn Condon, Inspectors John McCabe, John Walsh and Michael Rogers.

Arthur Pollard Is 87 Tomorrow

Lowell, Jan. 4—Arthur G. Pollard, head of the city goods concern of A. G. Pollard Co., will celebrate his 87th birthday tomorrow. Mr. Pollard still is active in business and good health. He comes to the store every day and retains a close interest not only in the store but in his other business connections and in the city's activities also. Mr. Pollard is said to be in excellent health, any formal observance for tomorrow.

Higher Prices in Stock Market Seen by Forbes

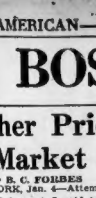
By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—Attempting a 1929 forecast I said in this column exactly a year ago:

"What 1929 will bring stock marketwise is on the knees of the gods. One man's guess is as good as another's. Mine happens to be that, whatever further excesses the bulls may have in the early part of the year, they will reach the end of their tether long before the end of this year."

"In face of monetary conditions, it is not conceivable to this writer that the speculative whoops can be furiously kept up throughout the year.

"It is entirely possible that 1929 will witness prosperity in business and employment, but not increasing "prosperity" in stock speculation."



B. C. Forbes

I also wrote last January:

"That the early part of 1929 will witness further marking-up of stock quotations is the general expectation. My humble view is that this stimulating credit will cause the speculative boom to collapse this year. I fear, too, that disturbances in Wall Street will be sufficiently severe to have some adverse effect upon industry and general business."

It was not difficult to foresee a Wall Street war in store for the Wall Street, and it was safe to predict that business would continue active until the inevitable failure of a stock crash became generally recognized.

One cannot be equally emphatic in attempting to forecast the course of industry and securities during 1930. The outlook now is less clear. However, here is my guess:

"The stock market will achieve a recovery exceeding current expectations.

"After early irregularity, the recovery will become more pronounced. Movement may be desultory for a brief spell during the summer, but the approach of fall, I believe, will witness a substantial revival in activity, confidence and strength.

The money market probably will distinguish those who look for phenomenal ease. Rates will continue to return to their old-time relation to time money, however. Improved day-to-day facilities than facilities for 30 days to six months.

A modest decline in demand rates and modest firmness in term rates will not be illogical.

Candidly, it takes courage—perhaps it would be better to say rashness—to attempt to forecast the course of industry and business.

My paradoxical prediction is that business will be reasonably satisfactory, but that employment will not be equally satisfactory.

Such industries as motors and steel should enjoy almost inordinate and emphatic rebounds from the irrationally low levels of recent weeks. Panic or no panic, the demand for automobiles will continue on a scale warranting larger output than that of the last two months. Railway buying of steel, as well as buying for heavy construction (public and private) should help to keep the steel industry at least normally active.

In most other industries timid recovery rather than a rebound is suggested. Ordinary building operations conceivably will fall materially below the records attained in recent years.

General retail trade will do well if it does not prove sub-normal. Bantiucinous spending must not be counted upon, certainly not in the first half of the year.

The Department of Agriculture declares that the purchasing-power of our far-flung agricultural population is improving (year to equal last year's), a comforting statement.

Unemployment, involving political and other agitation, threatens to be the bete noir of America's future. Science, chemistry, invention, managerial skill, cheap electric and gas power have combined to effect tremendously increased production without corresponding increase in human labor. Endless mergers also release employes of all ranks—executives, superintendents, salesmen, clerks, technicians, rank-and-file workmen.

This is the supreme problem challenging America's industrial, financial, business statesmen. The task does not call for a Chamber of Commerce committee, but for an institute of industrial co-ordination to be set up by organizing genius and wholeheartedly supported by the brainiest leaders in every walk of our economic life. President Hoover's admittedly temporary economic council could give place as speedily as possible to a more weighty body not under the aegis of any Chamber of Commerce.

Properly tackled, this most fundamentally serious of our economic and social problems should not prove insoluble by the brilliant brains this nation happily possesses.

To sum up, a year from now both stocks and business should be on a substantially better basis.

OIL FOR HEAT IN GREATER DEMAND

Washington, Jan. 4 (INS)—The American home is gnawing deeper yearly into the nation's non-mineral reserves for its heating, a national survey by the United States Bureau of Mines revealed today.

The year 1928 was no exception in the rising graph of America's consumption of gas and fuel oils.

For 1928, the survey showed, 12,367,000 barrels of oil were consumed for heating purposes, compared with 11,709,000 barrels in 1927 and 2,818,000 barrels in 1923.

The review showed a constantly increasing consumption. The year 1924 showed 3,021,000 barrels used, slightly under the consumption of 1923. The following year the consumption jumped to 8,529,000 and in 1926 another increase followed, consumption for heating totaling 9,060,000 barrels.

The total consumption of gas and fuel oil for America, including quantities shipped to non-contiguous territories was 1,439,769,000 barrels for 1928, said the survey, comparing this figure with a total of 561,662,501 for 1927.

The increase in 1928 deliveries, the statistics showed, came in spite of a drop of nearly 3,000,000 barrels in the amount exported. This decrease was attributed to "a smaller monthly rate of export to the insular possessions and to the decreased demand in Europe and the East Coast of South America for fuel oil from the United States."

"The domestic demand for gas and fuel oils during 1928 increased 11,979,420 barrels or 3.6 per cent over domestic deliveries during 1927, while exports and shipments to non-continuous territories decreased 2,782,319 barrels, or 6.25 per cent.

The major portion of the domestic demand increase, it was shown, resulted from greater use of fuel oil as fuel in petroleum refining and other oil company activities, the enlarged use of oil as a fuel in domestic and commercial heating, and for miscellaneous fuel purposes.

Abitibi Applies to Increase Shares

Application of Abitibi Power & Paper Co., Ltd., to list 100,000 additional shares of common stock on change indicates new developments may soon be announced by Abitibi.

Officials in Montreal refuse to comment, but it is understood the application is but the first step in preliminary inquiry, and may presage plans to strengthen Abitibi's position in the Canadian newsprint field.

Northern Pacific to Build 60 Miles

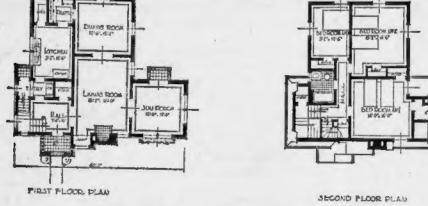
News of Modern Homes

English Cottage Costing $9900



ENGLISH COTTAGE OF CHARM
By National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc.

Owing to the low rambling roofs of the English cottage, the second floor is, in many cases, greatly reduced in area. This reduction in size of the second floor is a serious matter, for it is here that space is at a premium in order to give the required number of rooms of good size. And the servants' rooms, with the cottage type these must generally be provided on the first floor, at considerable added cost.

For the house HA-87 herewith illustrated, the architects have retained the full charm of the English cottage in the picturesque exterior, while they have also worked out an economical and practical plan to accompany it.

The roofs have been so designed that even a maid's room and a bath are provided on the third floor, while no space is lost on the second floor; three comfortable bedrooms, a bath and exceptional closet space are there found.

The service arrangement of this house merits study. The rear entry connects direct with the cellar stairway, it provides space for the ice box, thus these two can be reached from the outside. A door from the entry also connects with the front hall, so the front door is convenient to the kitchen, saving steps and the annoyance of passing through other rooms. The kitchen is well laid out and has a very large pot closet connecting. The pantry has built-in cupboards and the doors are so arranged that but very few more steps are required to reach the dining room from the kitchen, than if no pantry were provided.

A cellar extends under the entire house. Cost about $9,900.

COMPLETE working plans and specifications of the house illustrated above may be obtained for a nominal cost from the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc. Any technical questions regarding this house will be answered without cost or obligation. Address the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc., Real Estate Department, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, Mass. Refer to House H.-A.-87.

The Fine Points in Homes of Today

By BETTY BONNELL

OF course, the season of the year that glorifies Santa Claus at the same time places fireplaces in the limelight.

While Yuletide is just gone by, it is in order that I speak upon fireplaces this week because fireplaces have become an all-year essential in the modern home of today.

Betty Bonnell

Home owners, who love the tradition and warmth of an old-fashioned fireplace during the cold blasts of wintry months usually arrange for the construction of one at the time of home building, but countless homes in late years have been completed with this feature omitted. More than a few times have I been in the homes of folks who have bemoaned the fact that no fireplace afforded additional charm to the sominess of an otherwise charming living room.

In such cases it has always been my happy opportunity to point out the fact that it is unnecessary to longer be without the beauty and comfort of a fireplace. Further explanation is always demanded of me and I truly enjoy raising hopes fireplaces are being installed in any type and style of home, new or old and in any given location of the room designated by the tenant.

When I come to the point of making clear just what I have in mind, many of my friends have seen amazed and delighted to know of these Readybuilt Fireplaces to be had in so many attractive cut stone and brick combination designs. Of course, it is pleasing to me personally, as I note that a great many of the present day apartments are being built with these fireplaces as standard equipment.

Fireplaces have always been associated with the living room and the living room may well be regarded as important in home life, since it is where the family gathers, guests received and friends entertained.

So it becomes perfectly natural for many home lovers to extend their cherished living rooms by the installation of a Readybuilt Fireplace in one of the fascinating modern designs. I might also point out the fact that I have been ever so strongly impressed with styles and colorings which are, frankly, rarely attainable in brick and stone. Upon close investigation I have found that they are made of a specially cast composition of concrete, built to endure, and actually stronger than brick. A steel reinforcement insures permanence and long life.

You will certainly feel that I have had quite a good word to say for these Readybuilt Fireplaces, but my inborn and natural love for the home that possesses the homelike atmosphere made possible by a fireplace has prompted me to give expression to the sentiments in favor of them.

Incidentally, I have learned a great deal about fireplaces lately through visiting with Axel Olsen in his home at 9 Wilder st., Wollaston. He has had many years experience in the construction and installation of Readybuilt Fireplaces and my discussion of the subject with him was delightful indeed.

LITERATURE on standard materials and products used in the construction of the modern home will be sent to you if you will check the subjects that interest you and mail to the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc., Real Estate Dept., Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

"Sargenta" at B. U.

For the first time in the history of "Sargenta," the yearbook of Boston University's Sargent School of Physical Education, will be published as one of the Boston University student publications. Marie Engelking of Flushing, N. Y., first editor-in-chief under the new administration, has announced a modernistic design as the 1930 theme.

Jay Riseman Won Pershing Citation

Jay Riseman, the musical director of the Rendezvous Orchestra, not only has a good reputation as a musician, but a most enviable reputation as a man who has given excellent service in the cause of his country during the World War.

New Bedford Has Only 3-Colored Beacon

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

As we said some months ago, the layout like Dawson and Dave Sherhave at New Bedford is one of the best we have ever seen and so back up that statement we offer complete night lighting equipment to augment an already fine flying field.

On first inspection one does not find the night flying equipment now installed as being first rate, but when one has gotten over the plans these boys have drawn up for their airport, one begins to realize that any pilot who happens to be flying down around that part of the Cape after dark can always be assured of finding a field completely lighted, and always at their service.

At present, during this rather slack part of the season, there is an experimental beacon in operation on top of the hangar, which is flashing all night, and which bids fair to be one of the most exclusive of its kind in New England.

SPOTTED FROM CLOUDS

This beacon is a three-cornered one, flashing in turn, white, yellow and red lights, all within the space of five seconds. It is only an experimental one, and if it proves successful, Ike and Dave will install its big brother which will have a 36-inch lens power to refinish each lamp, making 3000 candle-power in all, and which will light up that section of the cape like Col. Green's red neon beacon does at present.

Before going into the rest of the night-flying lighting equipment being considered by Sound Airways, it might not be out of place to relate a night flight made by Henry "Hank" Olden, chief pilot of the outfit, and Ike Sherer, the other principal partner in the enterprise, when a complete overhaul was made on their Wright J-6 300 horse motor, at about 9 p. m., with every intention of finding their home field before the bad weather set in and deprived them of a place to land. When they were over Taunton, a good 20 miles from their field at East Fairhaven, they were flying above a layer of clouds that was sitting right on the ground, and under a layer that was about 1500 feet up.

Dave was anxiously scanning the horizon for some light that would help them on their true course, while Hank watched his instruments. Then this rather small beacon came into view. Its tell-tale three colors made it evident that it belonged to New Bedford Airport, and they were all set.

So, in the future, Sound Airways, Inc's. airport will be identified by the only three-colored beacon in New England.

Over $7000 have been appropriated by the company to light the field for night operations, which will include boundary lights, lights at each end, and the pennant beacon, already described.

As far as the actual operations go on Sound Airways' field, we find that the Travel Air and Waco biplanes used by the company for student instruction are in use every hour of every good day, and the Travel Air cabin monoplane is signed up for cross-country trips far in advance.

The amount of activity in January might come as a surprise to the rest of New England, but it just goes to show the grip aviation has on this section.

We think Dave and Ike are doing a good job with their new layout in New Bedford, and we are waiting for the spring to come along and give these boys a chance.

FLORIDA REPORTS

At least one of the boys from Boston Airport who started out for Florida has arrived there, if we may believe a card from George "Mike" Barry, premier ticket seller, who is reposing under the waving palms.

Barry reports that business is exceptionally good down there, but doesn't advise any of the boys to come down unless they have an option on a job in advance.

When "Mike" went down, he was hailed by Russell Parker, former pilot with Curtiss-Wright, and we think the pair of them are having a load of fun, and are also cleaning up in the meantime.

New Policy a Hit at the Lido Venice

The Lido Venice, by removing the cover charge at all times of the week, has won the approval of the dining-out public. John J. Lavagni, the managing director, has been insistent that the same high grade food be served in the same inimitable Lido Venice style, which has made this restaurant one of the most popular in the East.

As before, there is the same excellent dance music and the same high grade of entertainment for the diners. Dancing is held at the same hours as before. In fact, not one single policy of the Lido Venice has been changed.

Breath of South at Cotton Club

The popular place to dine and dance in the Back Bay is the Cotton Club, Lansdowne st., with that Southern atmosphere, where they are always doing their best to entertain the many patrons in a real way.

Manager Nat Clark is offering the best in entertainment with an all-colored revue with Muriel Edwards, a clever song and dance girl, while the T. N. T. Boys step around in fast style. The Boys come direct from the Cotton Club in New York City. Connie Billie and Mannie have just finished 14 weeks at that well known New York club.
